BIBB'S DEMOCRACY.

HER DELEGATES INSTRUCTED FOR

A Lively Session of the Democracy of the County Yesterdsy-Hon. James H. Blount Heartily Indorsed for Be-Election to Congress-Personal and Other Bits of News.

MACON, Ga., July 31 .- [Special.]-Today a noon the Bibb county democrats assembled in force at the courthouse. Colonel R. A. Nisbet called the meeting to order, and stated the object of the meeting, to select delegates to the congre ional and state senatorial conventions. As soon as the nomination of a chairman was declared in the nomination of a charman was declared in order Mr. J. H. Campbell nominated Hon. C. L. Bartlett. The nomination was seconded, and then Mr. Greer arose and caused a small sensation by attacking the supposed juggling of Pike county factions in round terms.

That brought Hou. R. W. Patterson to his feet,

That brought Hon. R. W. Patterson to his feet, and he made a strong argument for Mr. Bartlett, during which time Colonel Greer arose and offered an explanation of his assertion regarding the unfair steps taken by Mr. Redding, of Pike, to "PACK THE CONVENTION" in his own favor. Colonel Patterson continued, finally winding up by seconding the nomination of Mr. Bartlett as chairman. This was received with applause, and Mr. Campbell arose and de-nounced the statement made by Colonel Greer that he had been closeted with Mr. Redding as an infamous falsehood. He stated that he had been infamous falsehood. He stated that he had been approached by both Messrs. Redding and Powell, and that he had told both that it would be left with Pike county. He claimed, in concluding, that Colonel Greer's dissent arose from the fact that he had refused to assist Greer in the matter of appointment as marshal, by using his influence with Blount and Crisp. Colonel Greer then said that the latter assertion was Both gentlemen were ruled out of order by the chair, and asked both speakers to observe parliamentary etiquette in addressing the chair, Mr. Barlett then addressed the meeting, hurling back the accusation of an attempt to pack the con-back the accusation of an attempt to pack the convention.

Judge McManus then called for the previous question, and that the question of Mr. Bartlett's nomination be considered.

Major J. F. Hanson was then put in nomination, but declined. A good deal of confusion prevailed and Colonel R. E. Park was put in nomination. He declined and nominated Judge Nisbet, who also declined.

Messrs, Chapman and N. E. Harris insisted on Major Hanson's acceptance, and Thomas Willingham supported Mr. Bartlett, and Mr. Hanson also urged his nomination. Colonel Greer withdrew his objection to Bartlett, saying he had said all he wished to say. R. W. Patterson then spoke at some length in favor of Bartlett, who was put in nomination and

UNANIMOUSLY ELECTED. Mr. Fartlett thanked the convention appropri-ately, and three secretaries, Bridges Smith, J. B. Pound and M. M. Folsom, were chosen. Considerable discussion followed on the senato considerable discussion followed on the senato-ical question, and finally colonel Greer took the floor and moved that the Bibb county delegates be instructed to vote for the man placed in nomi-nation by that delegation which was the proper representative of the organized democracy of Pike county. W. A. Ross seconded that motion as an amendment to the Proudfit resolutions.

After considerable wranging, this was adopted.
The following are the delegates: G. W. Gustin, T. D. Tinsley, Jerre Hollis, C. D. Findlay, J. H. Campbell and W. Dessau.

Compleil and W. Dessau.

Complimentary resolutions indorsing Hon. J. H. Blount for re-election to congress were passed. They were offered by Colonel W. A. Lofton. The following delegates were chosen to the congressional convention:

Messrs, G. B. Turpin, W. R. Phillips, James Boone, C. L. Bartlett, W. R. Rogers, Hugh Mc-Kervey, M. Nussbaum, I. L. Harris, W. A. Wiley, Dr. F. Walker, C. D. Findley, B. L. Willingham, John P. Ross, T. J. Ware, J. H. Campbell, James Sybers, Jerry Willis.

On the street it was claimed that the prohibition question was the underlying issue, and that the result was a victory, not only for Redding but for the anti-probibitionists. The convention will meet in Forsyth.

THE AFRICAN RACE.

Has the Change from Slavery to Easier Modes of Life Made them Subjects of Consumption?

A Wonderful Story, as Told by a Well-Known and Reliable Colored Man.

It is a well-known fact that in the days before the war there was rarely foun a case of consumption among the negroes of the south, and it was thought by many that they were not liable to this much-dreaded disease. But the past twenty years would seem to prove that the theory was error, as many thousands are now annually carried off by consumption, proving that the African race is just as susceptible to this fatal disease as the Caucassion. But, be this as it may, a Constitution reporter recently met with a well-known colored porter of a Pullman car, who runs from Atlanta to New York. His name is Augustus L. Grant, and he lives at No. 250 Hayne, street, in this city. "I would like the Constitution," said Grant, "to publish for the benefit of consumptives and for the comfort of their friends, how I have been resened from a consumptive, grave." I know that many people think the colored people do not have consumption, but I know from experience that it is a great mistake. Seven years ago I became a subject of this forlorn disease, and was so pronounced by my physicians. My lungs became badly affected; my cough was awful, at times almost shaking me to pieces. My general health broke down and so declined that I became helpless and reduced in fiesh to a shadow. Terrible night sweats; no appetite or digestfou; more and more pain in my lungs. I suffered more and more; my cough became exceedingly exhaustive, discharging great quantities of puss and consumptive matter. I had in the meanwhile the best treatment; some of the best physicians prescribed for me, and become interested in my case; but after two or three year's treatment, finding that I continued to grow worse, they one by one abandoned the case until at last they were all agreed that it was only a question of time with me, and the time was thought to be very short. In this condition, with one foot as it were in the grave, and making my preparations to go through the dark waters of death, one of my physicians mentioned to me a remedy which might be tried as a la cian for me."

"Well, Granf, remarked the reporter, you have not said what the remedy was." "Oh, it was Swift's Specific, S. S. S., and my advice to every man, woman and child who has weak lungs, is to take S. S. S. It cured me sound and well, after all the doctors and all other medicines had failed, and I want every sufferer to know it."

Scrofula of Lungs Relieved!

I am now forty-nine years old, and have suffered for the last fifteen years with a lung trouble. Several members of the family, on my mother's side of the house, had died with consumption, and the dectors were all agreed in their opinion that I had consumption also. I had all the distressing symptons of that terrible disease. I have spent thousands of dollars to arrest the march of this disease. I have employed all of the usual methods, not only in my own case, but in the treatment of other members of my family, but temporary relief was all that I obtained. I was unfit for any manual labor for several years. By chance I came into possession of a pamphlet on "Blood and Skin Diseases" from the office of Swift Specific Company, Atlanta, Ga. A friend recommended the use of Swift's Specific, claiming that he had been greatly benefitted by its use in some lung troubles. I resolved to try it. About four years ago I commenced to take the S. S. according to directions. I found it an invigorating tonic, and have used about 50 bottles. The results are most remarkable. My cough has left me, my strength has returned, and I weigh 60 pounds more than I ever did in life. It has been three years since I stopped the use of the medicine, but I have had no return of the disease, and there are no pains or weakness felt in my lungs. I do the hardest kindof mechanbeen three years since I stopped the use of the medicine, but I have had no return of the disease, and there are no pains or weakness felt in my lungs. I do the hardest kind of mechanical work, and feel as well as I ever felt since I was a boy. These, I know, are wonderful statements to make, but I am honest when I say that I owe my existence and health today to Swift's Specific. It is the only medicine that brought me any permanent relief. I do not say that Swift's Specific will do this in every case, but most positively affirm that it has done this much for me, and I would be recreant to the duty I owe to suffering humanity if I failed to bear this cheerful testimony to the merits of this wonderful medicine. I am well known in the city of Montgomery, and I can refer to the best citizens in the city.

Montgomery, Ala., June 15th, 1885.

Lung Trouble.

Three and a half years ago I gave up my business, on account of consumption. I spent two seasons in Florida and one in California. I have been under treatment of physicians all the time, among them some of the most prominent in this city, and I have kept growing worse and worse. I got to be a mere shadow, and could scarcely walk. On the 14th of last September I kept my bed, for I was not able to get out of it, and the doctors, as well as my friends, all expected me never to come out of it alive. I was having frequent and profuse hemorrhages, and on three different occasions I bled until I became insensible. About six weeks are I heard of S. 25th and hearm taking it. Its effects have been wonderful. I have not had a hemorrhage since I began it. I was soon able to sit up and these myself. By appears we came good; I could eat and retain my food, and my color returned. I gained flesd and strength rapidly, and I am now walking about town wherever I wish to go. It is certainly a great surprise to me and every one who knows me. rapidly, and I am now watking about town wherever I wish to go. It is certainly a great surprise to me and every one who knows me. Longsince they have all expected me to die. I am willing and want all who suffer with lung disease to know of me and my case, and I advise all such to take Swift's Specific and live. These are not idle words, but absolute facts which will with pleasure be substantiated for any one who may doubt.

I was afflicted with a terrible case of blood poison for about thirteen months. I was treated by the best phycians and used various kinks of remedies, but received no substantial relief. I finally tried the Swift Specific and about four bottles cured me sound and well.

ULCERATED FOOT.

For nearly five years I suffered with a running, gangrenous sore on my foot. I spent all my wages for medicine, hoping to be cured. I never found any permanent relief until Messrs. I. H. & J. T. Pittard, of Winterville, Ga, procured for me six bottles of S. S. S., which, if it has not entirely cured me, has certainly healed the sore. All swelling and soreness have gone. Before I took Swift's Specific at times I could not walk at all. Only now in bad weather do I feel the slightest ache in my foot, and go and come at will. I sm truly thankful for what it has done for me. A number of witnesses are ready to corroborate my statement, CAROLINE JOHNSON, (Colored).

Oglethorpe Co., Ga., July 16, 1886.

A Few Plain Remarks to the Public.

We do not think there is another preparation which can bring forward such indorsements. We do not claim our remedy to be a specific for all diseases, but we do know it to be a remedy for diseases of the blood. It has been established beyond all doubt that scarcely any disease can find lodgement with the blood in good condition. To all these we say: If broken down in health, or your malady can be traced to a bad condition of your blood, take our Specific and you will not be disappointed. Our preparation removes the accumulated poison of ages from the blood, and we bold by assert that ninety per cent of all diseases spring from some corrupting influence of this, "the fountain of life," and we further assert that the proper vegetable remedies are cures for blood diseases.

We would ag ain call your attention to the fact that in almost every instance where Swift's Specific was resorted to, it was after all remedies of the scientist had failed. How much more not at the Specific would be could man be induced to avail himself of its powers before "every a ther treatment had been tried in vain," and the system impregnated with mineral poison.

Correspondence.

We invite every one who has any blood or skin disease to correspond with us. This costs you nothing, as we have two physicians of education, experience and ability to attend to this correspondence. These letters are all kept strictly private.

BEWARE OF FRAUD, HOW TO DETECT IT.

In calling the attention of con sumers to the counterfeits, frauds and imitations of Swift's Specific (S. S. S.), we may be permitted to say that a remedy which has no merit is never counterfeited. It is the valuable medicines only which are a prey to pirates and thieves. Remember that Swift's Specific is prepared and put up only by this company, in oval-shaped, amber-colored bottles, and each b ottle has a strip over the cork with the signatures of C. T. Swift and J. W. Rankin, Secretary Swift Specific Co.

DRY OR POWDERED FORM

We have reduced the roots and herbs of which Swift's Specific is prepared to a shape to readily yield their virtues to boiling water, in order to accommodate those who cannot take medicine centaining spirits. We give three processes for preparing it. Each consumer can take choice; they are all equally good, but we recommend process No. 1 to those who have been worn down and poisoned with potash and mercury mixtures. Price 50 cents per package.

Interesting Treatise on "Blood and Skin Diseases" mailed free to all applicants. It shou'd be carefully read by all, Governor Ireland, of Texas, Calls on the Federal Government for Redress-Pexas Will Project Italif if the Government Does Not Step In-What He Said to Mr. Bayard.

Negras for particulars and has received the following response:

EAGLES PASS, July 30.—Your telegram just received. Francisco Arresures was arrested by Deputy Sheriff Diaz at Eagle Pass by order of Sheriff Oglesby, on the night of the 25th instant. He was handcuffed and in fifte in minutes was delivered to Mexican officers across the river. Sheriff Oglesby persuaded him to sign the order for Arresure's arrest and delivery. There were no papers for his arrest from Mexico, except a letter from Mondragon captain of the state rangers in Coahulls, who made the general charge of horse stealing against Arresures. A protest against being delivered to the Mexican officers was strongly made by Arresures, who insisted that he would be killed by Mondragon, his personal enemy. He appealed to me for protection on the morning of July 27, and I at once demanded his return to lexas on the ground of his being kidnapped, and also had Oglesby to demand the prisoner's return on the same grounds. Both demands were refused by Mondragon. At one o'clock at night Arresures was taken from jail and brusally murdered by three of Mondragon's troops. In 1873, Arresures made a declaration of citizenship in Maverick county. He ived with his family in Eagle Pass and Piedras Negras testified to his family in Eggle Pass at the time of his arrest, and he was an ominibus driver. The best citizens in Eagle Pass and Piedras Negras testified to his good character, and Sheriff Oglesby says he has a private understanding with Mondragon, by which an escaped murderer from Texas for whom a large reward had been offered, was to be delivered to Oglesby in exchange for Arresures. Public indignation is very great on both sides of the river over this affair.

I have the honor to indorse a copy of a telegram just received from Hon. E. D. Lynn, American consul at Piedras Negras. This man Francisco Arresures has been most foully murdered by the Mexican authorities and it is but a repetition of insults and outrages committed upon American citizens by the people and authorities on the right bank of the Rio Grande. Still, nothing in palliation of the foul murder has, or can be, offered by the Mexican authorities. The persons, whoever they are who were engaged in the illegal onered by the mexican authorities. THE FEELING AGAINST MEXICO. THE FEELING AGAINST MEXICO.

DALLAS, Texas, July 31.—The feeling of friendliness which had begun to exist in Texas toward Mexico has been reversed, by the Catting and other outrages recently brought to light, to one of intense resentment, with everybody's voice for war. The young men of this and other Texas cities are quietly offering themselves for military service, if need be, and a similar movement, though to a lesser extent, is going on throughout the state. The state adjustant on throughout the state. The state adjutant general is daily receiving applications for permission to raise volunteer companies, and Captain Sicker, of the adjutant general's staff, states that if required he can have 10,000 men in motion within thirty days. The warlike feeling is intensified by the recital of American citizens of outrages experienced in Mexico, over which they heretofore were silent at the instance of employers, who feared the feet in addition to the case of R. H. Fleming, of this city, who was cast into a dungeon without cause, Seth Gage, civil engineer, has reported that while in the employment of the Interna tional railroad near Sabillo, he forced the lock in a bouse he had rented, on the strength of which he was arrested on the charge of burglary at the instance of a local alcade and cast into a losthsome dungeon. He was admitted to bail the following day with the proviso that he should, like a ticket-of-leave man, report

He so reported for ten days—each day suffering indignities, after which he was released without form of trial. Mr. Gage is now secretary of the Presidio Live Stock association and is a very promi-nent citizen. In the event of Cutting being sent to a Mexican penitentiary it would be difficult to restrain the people of Texas from an entire mill, which was 350 feet long and four stories high, is in ruins. The walls are flat except at the east end. The flames were confined to the mill building. Had there been a breeze nothing could have saved the buildings surrounding the mill. The cause of the fire is not definitely known, but it is supposed to have been an explosion of gas. The watchman had visited the spot where it broke out only two minutes before and when the alsem was given the flames were well under way. The mill furnished employment for about 300 hands. The loss is roughly estimated at $300,000. irregular invasion of Mexico.

Texas Arming in Anticipation of Hostilities

Dallas, July 31 .- The war spirit against Mexico is rampant throughout Texas, extending to the most remote hamlets. It is safe to say that a score of volunteer companies have been organized within the past ten days, ready at a mo-ment's notice to pass beyond the border in the event of hostilities between the two republics over the imprisonment at Paso del Norte of Editor Cutting and for other so called outrages on Amercan citizens. Ever since Juan Nepomiceno Cor-tina, with a command of Bashi-Bazouks, was per-mitted by the United States to wage four year's irregular war upon the Texas border, an idea seems to have prevailed in Mexico that an American citizen in that country is a proper subject for the unrestrained license of the erratic Alcaldes. The irritation caused in this community by the imprisonment of Cutting has brought to light the unjust imprisonment of a citizen of Dallas at Largas last May. The victim was Mr. R. H. Fleming, a traveling agent for an agricultural implement firm in this city, representing the D. M. Osborne company, of Auburn, N. Y. As Mr. Fleming was sitting on a bench in the plaza at Largas reading a newspaper he was approached by a policeman who asked him where he was going. Mr. Fleming replied that he proposed taking the stagenext morning for San Luis Potosi, where his business commanded him.

"Song" gaid the policeman "you are wanted at gas last May. The victim was Mr. R. H. Fleming, old soldiers came from all directions, and before the hour for the address of welcome, which was delivered by Dr. Felton in his most eloquent manner, there was over three thousand persons present. Major Stewart, of Conyers, Ga., responded in behalf of the regiment. The intervals between the speeches were enlivened by the excellent music furnished by the Dalton cornet band and the Cartersville band. While the guests were partaking of a splendid plenic dinner which was bountifully spread in the East Side institute grove, some young ladies who are being instructed in the use of the cornet, gave some fine renditions of charming music, which was quite a novelty.

The following officers were elected: Dr. E. J. Roach, of Atlanta, president; Colonel F. M. Ford, of Cartersville, vice-president; Captain Geo. W. Maddox, of Cartersville, secretary. Acworth was selected as the next place of meeting.

The battle-scarred flag of the brave 18th Regiing for San Luis Potosi, where his business commended him.

"Senor," said the policeman, "you are wanted at the alcalde's office."

Thither they went, and there the American citations—In fact, of everything except his trousers and shirt—and then sent to prison. Before leaving the office, he asked to be informed of the cause of his arrest, but received no jother reply than a withering stare. He then stood on his rights as an American citizen, but he succeeded only in provoking a smile. Through the streets of Largas, in a halfnude state, this American citizen was marched, to the great amusement of the ragged population. At the prison, which was filled with rats and vermin, he was put in a cell fashioned after the black hole of Calcutta.

Americans who had received news of the arrest went to the alcade's office and protested against the outrage, threatening to bring the case immediately to the attention of the American government. The result was that Mr. Fleming, after lying in prison eight hours, was released. He again asked the reason for his arrest, but none was given him. For this harsh and arbitrary act those who know Mr. Fleming must believe there was no excuse beyond a devilish malignity, having its foundation in an innate harted of everything American. The extent of this harted is logically deducable from the many cases coming under its exercise.

An engineer of the Mexican Central railway, haility from Waxahachie, near Dallas, who, through fear of retaliation, dares not consent to the publication of his name, says that in every instance of loss of life or injury by a railroad accident the laws are construed to the oppression of American citizens, however strong may be the evidence of their innocence, in proof of which he cites the case of an engineer who has been eighten months in prison in Steralgo without the benefit of a trial, and deprived of food or other aid from his friends. The man is now aliving skeleton. What was his crime? While running a freight train on a down grade the train, despite his efforts to hold it back. ran over a Mexican and killed him. For eighteen mouths this mean has been kept in close confinement. The reason why the United States government goes no further than a gingerly reminder to the Mexican authorities of these outrages on American citizens is alleged in Texas and along the border to be simply the almighty dollar. Many of the great manufacturing firms of the United States, particularly of agricultural implements, are finding Mexico a golden harvest held, and they do not want the friendly relations between the two governments interrupted, as it would break up their remunerative business. The leadexercise.

ing cities of Texas—Galveston, Houston, San Antonio, Austin, Waco, Dallas and Fort Worthdo not want trouble beyond the Rio Grande. They have that country overrun with their commercial travellers and find it abig bonanza for them. Consequently Americans who are mistreated by Mexican officials, confined for months on filmsy protexts without trial, hear no voice from leading Texas communities in their behalf, and the only protest comes from the scattered communities along the border. A bitter batred exists between El Paso and Paso del Norte, across the river, and this partially explains the across the river, and this partially explains the minute of the present hubbub. A clitizen of El Paso as arrested, and forthwith El Paso yelled with an arrested, and forthwith El Paso yelled with the state as been heard throughout Texas and city of Mexico.

CUTTING ON TRIAL. Extreme State's Rights in maxico-- The Case

DENVER, Col., July 31.—A dispatch from El Paso, Texas, dated last evening, says thernal of Cutting is now in progress at Paso Del Norte. 11 consists merely of a joint examination by the prosecuting attorney and the judge of the papers in the case. It is expected that the decision will be rendered touight, as the three days allotted for trial expires tomorrow. It seems that the length of the trial is determined before the trial begins. It is expectation among Mexican lawyers that Cutting will be sentenced to one or two years' imprisonment and taken at once to the penitentiary at Chinuahus.

Medina is also having his trial for raising the truppus a few nights ago. Cutting's case has brought our a higherto unknown fact that the doctrine of states rights is carried to the extreme limit in Mexico, and that the authorities at Chinuahua, will brook no interfence from the federal administration, or even from President Diaz personally. They will not even listen to friendly suggestions. As matters now stand, Cutting will certainly be sensenced to a long term of imprisonment, and carried to Chihuahua to serve out the term.

New York, July 31.—Another account of the yachting accident at Sandy Hook is as follows: Last evening at a few minutes before six o'clock, the schooner yacht Sarah Craig, of Philadelphia, was standing in towards Sandy Hook. All her sails were set and she appeared to be trying to gain shelter before the storm, which was threstening, broke. She had on board a pleasure party, consisting of eleven ladies and gentlemen who were enjoying a sail round from the Quaker City to this city. The sky graduelly become overcest and the The sky gradually became overcast, and the captain took in some of her sail. When she was abreast of Sandy Hook the rain began to fall fast, and the ladies on board retired to the cabins, while the gentlemen set to work with the sails and yacht. She quickly made head-way and rounded the point of the hook, stand-ing towards the horseshoe. Suddenly, when nearing the government dock, a thunder squall broke with terrible violence. The lightning played about the rigging of the schooner, and the waves, lashed into a perfect fury by large hail stones, dashed over the decks. WEAVER IS HERE!

THE PIERCE. WEAVER MYSTERY IS CLEARED UP AT LAST.

Indianapolis Undertaker in Chattaneoga and Brings Him to Atlanta-He Makes a Complete Confession of Everything,

The man who was killed in the Georgia Pacific sceident at the seventeen-mile tank in December last, was J. Woods Pierce, the Texas stock man. Plerce Weaver, the Indianapolis man, is now in Atlanta.

Weaver was arrested yesterday in Chattanooga

Weaver was arrested yesterday in Chattanooga by Captain Couch and has confessed his identity. For several days past, Mr. Ladsden, of the law firm of Gartrell & Ladsden, has been tracing Weaver. On Friday he ascertained that he was in Chattanooga, and yesterday morning, accompanied by Captain Couch, left for Chattanooga. They reached that city early in the dry, and calling upon the chief of police, made known their mission. Mr. Ladsden and the captain at once called upon Weaver. He was at his boayding house, and was not in the least expecting any me to face him with his past record. Mr. Ladsden, after gaining arrandience, did not wait long before informing to the had come for. At first Weaver did not wait long before informing to the had ascertained that Mr. Ladsden was well backed up with evidence tending to show that he was Weaver, he admitted his name and convinced in gentlemen present—if they entertained any doubt—that he was J. Pierce Weaver, the Indianapolis undertaker. After securing Weaver's admission, Mr. Ladsden informed him that he would have —that he was J. Pierce Weaver, the Indianapolis undertaker. After securing Weaver's admission, Mr. Ladsden informed him that he would have to come to Atlanta. Weaver protested at first, but when he ascertained that he would be placed under arrest and brought through he agreed to come. The party had no preparations to make for the journey and left on the next train. They reached Atlanta this morning at 1 o'clock by the East Tennessee train, and were met at the depot by Detective Bedford and Mounted Officer Thompson. Mr. Ladsden, Weaver and the officer entered a hack and were driven to police headentered a back and were driven to police head quarters. Weaver was not chained in any querters. Weaver was not chained in any way and had almost complete control of his actions. In leaving the train he walked ont by himself, and upon the platform became lost from the officers. Mr. Ladsden did appear uneasy during the short separation from his prisoner, whom he found in a few minutes waiting for him near the ticket office. At police headquarters Mr. Ladsden called Chief Connolly by telephone, and asked that a man be detailed to watch Weaver all night. Sepernumerary Wright was detailed to do the work, and Weaver was provided with a room in the Piedmont house, where he slept while the supernumerary kept guard at the door.

Weaver bears no resemblance whatever to Pierce, the man who was killed in the accident. Weaver is a neat looking mechanic, and dresses in good taste. He was wearing a full suit of dark goods a straw hat, and carried a cane. He wore eye glasses and his face was beandless except for a heavy, brown, drooping mustache. His hair is yet dark and inclined to curl. His teeth are wide apart and this together with his eyes make up his entire resemblance to Pierce.

hair is yet dark and inclined to curl. His teeth are wide apart and this together with his eyes make up his entire resemblance to Pierce. He is about five feet six inches tall and weighs about a hundred and forty, while the dead man was five feet nine inches and weighed a hundred and sixty pounds. In action and speech Weaver is slow. He is slow to begin a conversation too, but when he starts, talks freely, using good language. After he had been assigned to his room he was asked:
"Are you Weaver?"
"I am," he answered.
"J. Pierce Weaver, the Indianapolis undertaker?"

"Mr. Cox of—"
"Yes, he's a nice fellow. Why, I befriended that man in a dozen ways—lent him money, and he gave me away. When he met me on the street in Chattanooga it was be swore by all that's good and had he'd never give me away, and then came off and told where I was. That was clever. I have had lots of trouble, but I have never done a thing of which I am ashamed, and which I would not do over again under the same circumstances. I had a good start in Indianapolis when that woman treated me so mean I had to leave her. I applied for a divorce, and my mother persuaded me to withdraw it on account of my children. Three times I sued for a divorce, and each time quit because my mother asked me to. I went to Texas, and had just got a good start out there when she followed me and broke me up. I then came to Chattanooga, and was just getting a good start when Cox gave me away, and here I am, a ruined man again. If I go back no one will give me business."

"And you are Weaver?"
"There's no doubt about it, and people who knew me know it. That man in the grave never knew my wife, and there could have been no resemblance between ns.
The ring Mr. Ladsden has is a Masonic ring with sign and emblems of the thirth-third degree. It is a quaint, funny piece of jewelry. Weaver takes his detention quietly and easily, and says that the only regret he has in the matter, is that his wife may see him again.

tion quietly and easily, and says that the only regret he has in the matter, is that his wife may see him again.

Captain Couch is firmly convinced without waiting for the identification Mr. Ladsden will seek today, that he has Weaver.

Today Mr. Ladsden will arrange for Dr. Wilson and others who knew Mr. and Mrs. Weaver in Indiana, to see and converse with Mr. Weaver, and if possible convince the attorneys on the opposite side that the pritoner is the man who lived in Indianapolis. He will then have Miss Long and Mrs. Chisholm, who knew Weaver alias Flerce as a hotel proprietorin Fortworth see if the prisoner is that man. The attorney shat the dead man is the Texas man, so that their claim will be withdrawn. If he succeeds Weaver will be given his full liberty at once.

Colonel Ladsden, of the firm of Gartrell & Ladsden, has been uniting in his efforts to unravel this mysterious affair, and to him will be due the final successful termination of the case. From the hour he was employed in the case he expressed himself as confident that he was on the right side.

-How the Prisoners Look.
CHICAGO, July 31.—The anarchiets resumed the wearing of their red boutonnaires this morning with the exception of Spies, who discarded one profered him by a female as mathizer. Defendants Spies, Schwab, Fields and Fischer have colorless faces, showing the evident effect of the trial. The young bould maker, Lingg, is the only one of the cluster on trial who appears to carry himsaif in evident effect of the trial. on trial who appears to carry himself in a on trial who appears to carry himself in a unconcerned manner. The court room, we crowded as usual.

John Deegan, brother of the murdered officer, Matthias Deegan, was called, and testified to seeing the dead body of his brother at the morgue on the morning of May 5.

Officer Burns testified to aiding in lifting Officer Deegan's body into a patrol wagon so ma after the explosion of the bomb, and testified to the fact of his death. This was merely formal testimony.

The defense declined to cross examine. The state offered in evidence articles which

The defense declined to cross examine. The state offered in evidence articles which appeared in the Arbeiter Zeitung just prior to the May massacre, outlining the violence which would follow the inauguration of the eight hour movement. One of the articles demanded that no morning should pass without the announcement being published that the carcass of a Pinkerton detective had been found by the readside. Under date of November 27, 1855, a notice was printed announcing that found by the roadside. Under date of November 27, 1885, a notice was printed announcing that armed drills would be held every Sanday monning, on Clybourne avenue, to prepare for the revolution on May first. Also a method for fashioning dynamite bombs, was outlined. In December, 1885, an article warned workingmen not to assemble on May first, unless armed. In a later article, penned by Spies, he warned all workingmen to thoroughly arm themselves and be prepared to ght the police, Pinkerton detectives and militin on May first. In January an article was printed inferring that dynamite bombs should be prepared for use against these forces.

The defense suggested that this matter was a communication to the paper and that Spies should not be held responsible for the suggestion. Other articles from the pen of Spies were read, published at various times down to May 4th, urging workingmen to arm and fight the police and militia to death on May ton. Other articles from the pen of Spies were read, published at various times down to May 4th, urging workingmen to arm and fight the police and militia to death on May 1st. The reading of an editorial signed by Spies, directed against a justice of the appellate court, and threatening him with death by dynamite, owing to his decision in favor of a railway company, as against an injured employe, caused the first wave of merriment among the defendants during the forencon. The reading of these articles were prolonged longer than had been expected with the prospect that it would prolong the case for the prosecution beyond the noon adjournment. Without concluding the reading of these articles the court adjourned until 2 p. m. When the state had finished its readings, Detective James Bonfield was placed on the stand and identified some red flags and banners which were brought into court as those found in the Arbeit rZeitung office. They bear such inscriptions as:

"Every government is a conspiracy against the such inscriptions as:

"Every government is a conspiracy against the people."

"Dick Oglesby, who murdered the poor workingmen at Lamont, is not in this procession. You can see him later."
"Boys, slick together."
Mayor Harrison, being in court, the following inscription on another banner created considerable amusement and caused the mayor to siderable amusement, and caused the mayor to siderable amusement, and caused smile. It read:

Carter Harrison, who clubbed our citizens during the carmen's strike, is not in this procession. You can see him later.
"Here the state rests," said State's Attorney

Grinnell, and the court ordered the defens

Grinnell, and the court ordered the defense to proceed with its case.

After a whispered consultation with his colleagues, Attoriey Zeisler rose and asked that the court authorize the removal of the jury, pending the ar, um unts upon a motion which the defense wieled to make.

Judge Gary coult not see the propriety of breaking up court on any such account; he knew of no such precedent in this country.

Mr. Foster said le hid never known such a court replied request to be refused, and the court replied Scotland, but he knew of no reason why the custom should be imitated here. "I shall not remove the jury," said the

Mr. Solomon, for the defense, then moved that the case against Oscar Neebe be dismissed. He said the evidence brought in has been mainly to establish what is called conspiracy. mainly to establish what is called conspiracy. None of the evidence brought in, however, identifies Neebe with any of the overt acts charged against the defendants in the case. The only evidence brought here to show that Neebe has any connection with the case is that he distributed some circulars on Monday before the riot, and that a gun, pistol and sword were found at his house. But none of this evidence connects in anyway Neebe with the overt acts, which are the basis of this

This theory was supported by each of the attorneys for the defense in short speeches, and when Judge Gary said, "I shall not interfere with the jury in the case of Neebe"—the motion being that the Judge instruct the jury to return a verdict of acquittal in Neebe's or to return a verdict of acquittal in Neoco's case—Captain Black answered in an impassioned speech, which was, however, simply a plea for Neebe on the grounds given for the motion under discussion. One of Captain Black's illustrations was quite dramatic. Referring to the revolutionary articles and circulars presented by the state, Captain Black pointed his long finger at Mayor Harrison, who still occurred a seat reserves that of the state's attorney.

long finger at Mayor Harrison, who still occupied a seat near that of the state's attorney, and said: "The municipal authorities knew of the publication of these articles, and standing idly by as Noebe, are just as culpable as he."

The court overruled the motion. Captain Black then, as a matter of form, he said, made the same motion in the case against all other defendants except Spies and Fischer. This was overruled and an exception taken. Attorney Salomon then rose and opened the case for the defense. for the defense. .

THE AMERICAN TRACT SOCIETY. Its Bad Financial Condition - A Reform Neeced.

New York, July 31.—[Special.]—The American tract society is at the "point of either death or renewed life. Both its financial and spiritual health is bad, though not by reason of anything in the least scandalous, and a committee has been appointed to recommend rejuvenation or demise. It is the feeling among the friends of the time-honored society that a radical change in the character of the tracts, to bring them up to the times, would infuse new life. Doctor Rand, the general secretary, says it is impossible as yet to outline the reforms, for no meeting has been held except to effect a formal organization and the members are scattered about the world enjoying vacations. The society was induced to take action of this character by a gradual and steady decrease in the receipts during the last twelve years. This is attributed not to any unattractive appearance of the tracts, nor to inferiority of any kind as compared with similar works published elsewhere, but to the rise of so many denominational publishing houses. There is no large denomination today that does not maintain its own book concerns the patronage of the general society has there-fore fallen off. Few of these book concerns the patronage of the general sectory at the tofore fallen off. Few of these book concerns are self supporting. Their ends are made to meet by contributions taken in the churches once a year. The church members naturally give their denomination the preference in assistance for propagandism, and the tract acciety suffers. "Moreover," said Doctor Rand,
"there has been a great multiplication of periodica's during the past few years and denominational papers are more numerous than when this society was organized. All these things combine to force us to adopt some new policy but what it will be I have no idea. Our tracta are equal to the best in every particular, but it may prove that we shall have to curtail our work." Early in September a decision will be reached, and the American tract society will begin to issue leaflets of new designs, or usher itself out of existence.

A VOUDOU VISION.

An Aged Negress Startles a Down-Town

Neighborhood. From the N. O. Times Democrat. On a side street below Canal stands a quaint old French house, brown and low, with many peaked dormer windows staring inquiringly out from the heavy foliage hanging thickly about its roof. The flowers racing as to which shall make the bravest show, have seemingly resigned in favor of the sweet olive, a great tree near by, whose branches are studded even now with tiny amber buds, soon to break into flowers and perfume.

The other morning about 5 o'clock, just as the The other morning about 5 o'clock, just as the quiet sky was putting off her cool gray night dress in readiness for a sun bath, the family inside were roused by a shrill monotonous chanting, that seemed to come from half a dozen different quarters of the yard at once. It was so weird and uncanny that the inmates hurried to the different windows, peeping cautiously from the curtains. The misty pallor of early morning showed shadowy outlines of a strange figure flitting round and round the house. Each moment the horizon brightened, and as the first spear of sunlight shot up heavenward, the mystery cleared and made beavenward, the mystery cleared and made plain to view a vile looking old negress, who had never for an instant ceased to mouth and mean and contort her wretched little body with a thousand unplessent motions mean and contort her wretched little body with a thousand unpleasant motions.

She was ridiculously thin, the flesh having shrubk and withered like dried leather to her bones. The long, peaked head had been shaved smooth as a billiard ball, except at intervals, where twisted tufts of gray wool stood up crockedly as white horns from the shining surface. Her mouth, wide and gaping, showed through the wreathing of her lips only ill-looking, toothless gums. Her scanty garments did not serve to cover the skinny body; a bright yellow-and blue cotton skirt fell a little below her knees, and with a short jacket of bright yellow-and blue cotton skirt fell a little below her knees, and with a short jacket of the same material, unbuttoned from throat to waist, completed a fragmentary costume.

It was only necessary to see the savagery lunking in her evil sunken eyes, the free feline activity of every movement, together with the monkeyish arms swinging loosely far below her waist, to know this creature had been trapped half a century ago in some African jungle and transported here for taming—an animal civilization had never touched.

By this time every servant in the neighbor-

By this time every servant in the neighborhood had assembled, only to sneak off in trembling awe as they recognized in the witch a powerful voudou woman from the swamp. Why she had come they conjectured in fearful whispers, feeling sure mean while of darkest misery following close on this open exercise of the black conjurer's art and a dreadful blight fallfng wherever her sly, red-rimmed eyes should ve or fall.
For many hours the wild dancing, accompanied by low mutterings and crooning chants, never stopped. How the frail old body had strength for such violent exertion was inex-plicable, for he arms whirled like mill wheels, her head wegged ceaselessly, yet on she went, raving, meaning and singing without end.

The mistress of the house urged that some steps should be taken to put a stop to such an ineane proceeding, but was implored so earnestly—even tearfully—by the servants to let the woman alone, she could not but listen to their prayers.

their prayers.
"Lord! Miss Lizzie, you never been conjured, cbile, elsen you'd be a sight more kerful en dat
'tent der way you talks," remarked Mandy, the cook.

"I 'members like 'twas yestiddy findin' one er them kunjur balls in my piller. All thet nixt I pode about studin' en studin' what it 'mesn. Shore nuf, for 12 er'clock thet night thet same chile Izair what bin havin ague all summer died dead. Ther doctor did say 'twas green persimmons, but I knowed better, and I 'treats you now ter be kerful.'

It was now breakfast time, and the old dancer in front began with a broken bottle to scrape dirt from all corners of the side-walk, and heap it in one pile. As soon as this had reacked proper vouden proportions, she took her tas on a throne, and produced from some his copboard about her person a piece of fine bread; keeping up all the time the weird chantng. At the conclusion she disappeared to the relief of the neighborhood, the colored portion of which is waiting in an agony of apprehension for the curse to take effect.

G W. ADAIR—I HAVE DECIDED NOT TO RUN Off to any hot watering place, but to stay at home, keep cool and sell a few special bargains before the fall boom. I will sell a bargain on accommodating terms in a lot 100x200 feet, running from one street to another with a well constructed 8 room cottage in good order, fine garden, good water and 8 large forest shade trees, good nelghborhood, belongs to non-resident. Also a very desirable new residence on Capitol Place near Capital Harry Jackson's mansion. Also a large lot and 5 room house on Capitol avenue, near street ratiroad to Park. Also two 6 room cottages near First Methodist church. Also three splendid places on Kimball street between east and west Peachtree streets. Gas and water. They are elegant. I have a cash offer this week on two pieces of central business property 25 per cent above tax assessment of 1886. "There is life in the old land yet." A number of capitalists have said to me this past week, that they were ready to put down cash at fair valuation for any central business property improved or vaccant. Anyone who wants to sell take notice and come in. I have no idea of moving to Birmingham or any other Ham. Buyers and sellers are invited to call and talk over the situation and adjust values on a trading hasis. to call and talk over the situation and adjust val-ues on a trading basis.

THE CONSTITUTION,

ANNUAL TRADE PAPER.

On the first of September THE CONSTITUTION will issue its annual trade paper. In view of the oc-currences of the past twelve months, this issue of THE CONSTITUTION will be the most interesting ever published, and will contain some startling facts which will be

Of Interest to All Georgia.

Our arrangements have been made for a com pact and complete trade paper which will cover every point of Atlanta's progress, her trade, her real estate interests and her general welfare. Competent special writers have been engaged to discuss the different phases of Atlanta life and trade. THE CONSTITUTION'S trade issues have been in this country, and it is proposed to make the coming issue of September first the best that has yet been printed, and one that will fairly illustrate Atlanta and give new impetus to her growth. Our ample facilities will enable us to print a pa-per large enough to meet all the demands of our advertisers. We have, therefore, determined to

Without Equal in the History of Trade Journalism

of advertising. The unusually large circulation will make this issue a valuable one to the advertiser, as well as the reader. Applications for space and preferred position had best be made at once, as the demand will be very large.

We urge our patrons and all citizens of Atlanta to get together and make the Trade Issue of the Constitution for '86 a fair map of this great city and its great concerns. For rates, apply at the office of THE CONSTITU-TION, or send a card, when an advertising agent will call and make estimates. ATLANTA, GA., AUGUST 1, 1886.

Indications for Atlanta and Georgia, taken at 1 o'clock, a. m.: Local rains; stationary RED. BLUE. temperature. North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia and Florida: Local rains; Southerly winds, stationary temperature. Alabama: Fair weather; southerly winds, stationary temperature.

Prohibition in Mississippi.

The most heated prohibition campaign of the season is now progressing in Mississippi. During the summer about thirty counties will vote on the question.

Two years age the local option men carried "wets" are well organized, and they have succeeded in regaining several counties.

An interesting feature of the campaign is the part taken by the negroes. Two years ago many of them voted the "dry" ticket, but they now seem inclined to take the other

Quite recently the prohibitionists have shown a disposition to carry the issue into party politics. The democrats are opposed to this, and the matter will have to be de cided as heretofore by a popular vote. The opposing sides are so well matched that it is impossible to predict the result.

Home Industries.

THE CONSTITUTION yesterday published a circular issued by the railroad commission that deserves notice. The circular relates to a rate on broom corn. There is in this city a broom corn factory which ships brooms to points as far west as San Antonio, Texas, But the material of which the brooms are made has to be brought from Chicago at a rate of about 59 cents for one hundred pounds, a distance of 731 miles. The rate was made at the solicitation of the Atlanta broom company, as the rate heretofore has been too high to enable the farmer to produce the article.

The proprietors of the Atlanta broom factory, in order to encourage the production of the article at home, have given to the farmers of Georgia large quantities of the seed. They have most gratifying reports from those to whom they have sent the seed, and they anticipate most favorable results. The climate of Georgia is as well adapted to the production of broom corn as that of any state of the union, and there is absolutely nothing to hinder our farmers from realizing reasonable profits on their investment in broom corn culture. Children can cultivate

It seems to us that the farmers of Georgia should look into this matter. The broom factory of Atlanta would gladly buy the broom corn from them. Thus the money for the raw material, as well as for the manufactured article, would remain in the state, and all parties would thereby be benefitted.

About Reading. The New York Nation has an article on the reading habit which touches some very important changes that are now going on in what may be called the literary market. Mr. Henry Holt, a well known publisher, in his argument before the committee of the senate on the copyright bill, declared that book-buying habit is dying out; and in the English, periodicals there are similar complaints. The Nation commenting on this, says that the decline is not only in serious reading, but in continuous reading of all kinds.

In other words there is a serious decline in the reading habit. Fiction that is light is not light wough, and matter that was entertaining forty years ago, is now suffering from an accumulation of heaviness. People who are trained in reading have been diverted by the nonsense they find in the newspapers and megazines, and this diversion has been accentuated in the younger generation by the shallow education they receive in the public schools. Serious books are no longer read. A person of liberal tastes, who would accumnlate a library in this day and time, finds that if he would compete with his next door neighbor and satisfy his own family, he must invest his surplus fund in the rot and trash that go by the name of bric-a-brac. He may be intelligent enough to understand that this bric-a-brac business is in the interest of paganism pure and simple, that it is an offense against good taste, and a revolt against art. Nevertheless, he is carried forward with the tide. Instead of buying books he invests in horrible pictures and articles that represent the culture of small boys and apprentices in the pottery establishments. He satisfies his family, but not himself, and though he may sometimes steal surrepti-tiously into the bookstores and look longingly at the titles of coveted books he never invests.

There is no more miserable individual on earth than the intelligent man who is compelled to allow his purse to be diverted from the purchase of books to the purchase of jugs, pitchers, and so-called vases. Those who are not sorry for him have themselves no taste and no desire to acquire taste. The love of books is an acquired taste, and those who are fond of reading in this day and generation may consider themselves fortunate, for they have a solace of which no contingency can deprive them. If they are unable to buy new books, they can at least turn to the old ones and therein find companionship.

The north has a habit of regarding the south as a somewhat barbarous section, but it would not be too much to say that, in spite of the war and its disasters, more and better books can be found in this part of the country than in the north; more and better private libraries—though a great many of these have been scattered. We are sorry to say, however, that there has been a decline in the buying of books and a serious decay in the reading habit. The south, too, is indulging to some extent in the bric-a-brac craze. In the humblest home-in which we should find nothing but peace and contentmentare to be found the horrible Japanese screens and the unspeakably ugly jugs that cost money. Such a lack of baste as this must be reformed. Let us return once more to the

A Look Ahead.

Weather Prophet De Voe is not in the slightest degree taken aback by the failure of his July tornado predictions. Pert, chipper and brassy as ever, he now comes racking along with a detailed programme covering August and stretching into September.

This month the tornadoes which appeared out in Dakota in April will strike the Atlantic coast. August will enter very close and muggy. There will be heavy thunder storms. The heat will be intense. We may look for sweltering belts of melt. The latter part of the month will be pleasant, but September will enter very warm with a scorching southwest wind.

The most interesting part of the forecast is the slap which De Voe gives Wiggins. Instead of having a big storm on the Atlantic coast about the 21st of September, as Wiggins predicts, we are to have it twenty days earlier, but as it will strike near Halifax, we need not bother about it.

As none of the weather prophets are in very good standing just now, we do not mind giving them a little space. Their guess work is not likely to scare anybody.

Where Jokes are Not Appreciated.
The most remarkable case of the year is the one reported from Asheville, N. C., in which the editors of the Citizen were fined $100 for contempt of court.

The alleged contempt was nothing but a piece of pleasantry. The Citizen said something about a hung jury in the court, and intimated that it was a question whether the community would not be better off if the lawyers and the judge could be made to share the fate of the jury.

For getting off this venerable chestnut. the Asheville journalists were made to submit to the indignity of an arrest, and after an exciting trial they were adjudged guilty and fined as above stated.

Perhaps no comment is required. The incident speaks for itself. Still, we feel that it is in order to felicitate our contemporaries upon baving escaped with their lives. In a place where an antiquated little joke is visited with such a rough penalty it goes without saying that a genuine humorist would be assassinated on the spet as soon as he opened his mouth. An Asheville court must be the most awfully dignified body in the world, and Asheville itself must be powerfully solemn.

THE Savannah News is outspoken in favor of the sort of civil service reform the country is now enjoying. But no doubt Savanns would feel more comfortable if the federal offices in that city were filled with democrats instead of republicans. At any rate, such a change would have the appearance of genuine civil service reform.

PROHIBITIONISTS and anti-prohibitionists cannot do without the August number of the Southern Evangelist, just out, and for sale at the news stands. This number contains full reports of the matchless prohibition speeches delivered by Sam Jones at Macon, Kirksville and Trenton, Mo., and Sam Small's addresses at Jackson, Miss. These speeches, delivered in the heat of a "dry" campaign, are unequaled for vigorous thought and language wit, humor, sarcasm and denunciation. Besides these attractions the Evangelist contains editorials on timely topics, religious news, temperance notes, poems, stories, entertaining miscellany, Rev. O. P. Fitzgerald's great ser mon at Monteagle, and Sam Jones's two strong sermons at Sea Shore camp ground. It is a live number and will interest all classes o readers. Single copies, five cents. Yearly subscription, fifty cents. Published by W. A. Hemphill, Atlanta, Ga.

MISS MAMIE ANDERSON proposes to take a year's rest. If all actors and actresses not over 19 years of age would follow Miss Mollie's example, the public would have a year's rest.

ABOUT a year ago there was found in Egypt place where many mummies and much asure was concealed. The mummies were the bodies of distinguished people and the entire find was removed to the museum of Egyptian antiquities at Cairo where the mummies were numbered. On June 1st, in the presence of the khedive two of the mummies were unrolled. By means of writing on the lid of the case that enclosed the remains it was found that No. 5,233 was Rameses II, the Sesostris of Greek historians. This mighty man, during his lifetime, extended his con quests from Asia Minor to Central Africa, carved his image and name and boasts on mountain passes and colossal monuments, bnilt temples for his gods and palaces for himself, but will hereafter stand in a glass case in the Boulak museum at Cairo. The other mummy that was unrolled was Rameses III. An inscription on one of the inner winding aboets certified that the mummy was the body of that king "estab-lished for eternity." He. also, had been a great conquerer. Forty years ago few people would have believed that a medern museum would ever possess the body of Sesostris and that the face of the king would be revealed. But even another remarkable discovery has been made in Egypt. Mr. F. Petrie has found the palace on which the prophet Jeremiah delivered the prophecy about Nebuchadnezzar and which (Jer. 43, ix) he calls "Pharach" house in Tahpanhes." The identification is complete. The New York Journal of Commerce takes these and other facts as a basis for

There are doubters even among those who pro fess to believe in their Bibles. It is well to say again, that while we have had to correct Herodo-tus by the evidence of ancient art articles, while annotated editions of ancient authors are necessary because the permanent and truthful evidence of contemporary art shows them to have been in error, it has never been necessary for this reason to make a marginal note or correction of any state-ment by any of the authors of the books forming the Bible. Many of them treated largely of Egyptian events, manners and customs. Egypt has been uncovered. Her kings come out of tombs into modern museums. Every voice of Egyptian art, and every illustration of Egyptian history and character has confirmed the minute accuracy of the sacred historians. There are no such ancient books as these outside of the cover which is books as these, outside of the cover which is stamped "Bible." Whether men believe in their inspired origin or not, no sensible man can resist the overwhelming evidence of their superiority to all other known literature of ancient times.

Ar latest accounts this government had not apologized to Mexico. It will appear in the Boston papers as soon as Mr. Bayard completes

A NUMBER of preachers at the north are going on a bicycle tour. We call the attention of Sam Jones to this untimely display of frivclity.

Your New York alderman is a bird. A constituent of Alderman Long decided to wear a "biled shirt" and accordingly went to a Chines laundry to get his linen manipulated. The poor little washee-washee did as he had always done before. He took the linen and gave the constituent a receipt-one of those queer looking documents such as no living man except a Chiman could read. The con stituent went away with his receipt, and when he had need of his linen started out to find the laundry. He could not find the place. Therefore he went to his alderman for redress and the board of aldermen passed an ordinance requiring that Chinamen should give receipts in English, or in whatever language the customer could understand. It was a very short little ordinance but it gets up trouble. In the first place the Chinamen will have to understand English and countless other tongues or they will have to employ some accomplished linguists. The aldermen should have gone a step further, and have required that the Chinamen should wash for no man who was unable to read at least three languages at once and play on the fiddle at the same time.

Two men were playing billiards in a Minnesota town when a cyclone arrived, says Texas sittings. One of them was about to attempt a very difficult shot. Suddenly the storm came, the roof of the building was torn open and the billiard table sucked up and swept away. The players were stunned, but unhurt, and some days after, in beating the neighboring fields, they came upon the billiard table, upright and perfectly level, with the bells in precisely the same position in which they were when surprised by the tempest. Having their cues with them, by a fortunate chance, they went to work and concluded the game.

Please bear both sides Officer Bain began to move the seats, arranging to the Genee. The afore-mentioned pastor though that there were very few, if any, dancers in the assembly. The pastor had common lense and knew that neither he nor Officer Bain had any authority to prevent the dance. He simply requested the officer not to arrange for and thus invite the dance unless some one had requested him to do so. The officer, so overwheingly impressed that it was the custom and that he had no authority to interfere, seemed unable to catch on to the idea at all. He desisted, however, for a few moments, until a young man came up and requested that the seats be moved.

PAUL HAYNE'S SON Corrects Some Misrepresentations of His Father's Mode of Life.

From the Chicago News. From the Chicago News.

Copse Hill, Ga., July 31.—An article in connection with my father's death appeared lately in your paper. The article was entitled "Paul Hayne, the Poet," and was printed over the signature of J. L. Martin. This gentleman, whoever he may be, expressed a warm appreciation of my father's poetic work and of certain traits of his character, but the article contains many inaccuracies which demand correction.

1. My father's eyes were dark brown and not black.

2. Our cottage, as originally built, contained six and not three rooms Mr. Martin states that our house is "situated some two hundred yards from a platform at the railroad track, too insignificant to be christened." The platform referred to was called Forrest Station before my father came to Copse Hill, and is situa-ted half a mile from our cottage.

4. Mr. Martin writes: "Had the poet been com-pelled to support himself and wife and babies from the fruits of the soil he would have labored from the fruits of the soil he would have labored in vail."

Now, while it is very true that the soil of Copse Hill is too unproductive to jieid stipport for a family, it is quite unirue such support was needed for bables, in view of the fact that the present writer is the only child of his parents, and was ten years old when they removed to Copse Hill, in 1866. It will be seen, therefore, that Mr. Martin's tender allusion to "fatherless children," in another portion of his article, is inappropriate.

6. Mr. Martin writes that my father "was the most improvident of mortals," and adds. "As illustrative of this improvidence, he would go to Augusta when he hadn't a dellar in the world, except to pay his fare, and order the luxuries of life more lavishly than he did the necessities."

As the luxuries here alluded to consisted chiefly of corn bread, bacon, hominy, and hard tack (our residence at Copse Hill), the erroneousness of the foregoing charge will be apparent.

6. Mr. Martin adds: "Under his little house he had a small hole dug which he designated as a cellar, and in that he would store the choicest of wines and brandles, though be it said to his credit he was very abstemious in the use of those spirits."

There was no "small hole designated as a cel-cellar, and in that he would sore the cancers or wines and brandies, though be it said to his credit he was very abstemious in the use of these spirits."

There was no "small hole designated as a cellar" under our "little house," and I never saw or heard of it until I read the sentence just quoted.

7. Mr. Martin states that my father "had no neighbors, save here and there a veritable Georgia cracker and a few hands at a saw-mill, which my brother operated down at the foot of the hill."

As a matter of fact, there was a saw-mill several miles from our cottage, but none at the foot of Copse Hill, which fionts the railroad track.

8. Mr. Martin writes that my father "knew nothing of the practical affairs of life," and adds, by way of filustration, the following: "One day my brother found him working in his little garden. Knowing the sterility of the patch, my brother suggested to Mr. Hayne that it would be a good thing if he would send down to the saw-mil and get some of the muck which had accumulated against a pile of slabs and spread it over the garden. Mr. Hayne politiely thanked my brother for the donation and said he would send down for the muck at once. He did so, but the mill hands filled the air with laughter when they saw adminutive negro boy shuffling along with a peck measure in which to get the needed muck."

My father never had the physical strength to work-in our garden, and his alleged labor there is as much a myth as "the diminutive negro boy," "the peck measure" and "the muck.

9. Near the end of Mr. Martin's article occurs the following sentence, illustrative of what he terms my father's "lack of practical commosenses": "It was even said that he could not tell a freight train from a passenger train, and that he frequently would rush down to the little platform to board freight trains which never stopped there, thinking they were passenger train, and that he frequently would rush down to the little platform to board freight trains which never stopped there, thinking they were passenger train, and

A Woman Bull-Fighter Who Has Become Renowned Throughout Spain. Madrid letter in Paris Gaulois.

There was a great bull fight at Aranjues Madrid. The chief attraction was Lagartijo, the greatest of bull fighters, who, after the performance, was feted at a great banque; at which 400 of the most distinguished citizens sat down. But Lagartijo must look to his laurels, as he has a redoubtable rival. This rival is a woman named Fragosa. She is a torera of the first rank, and the different cit.es contend for her presence on grand occasions. Her real name is Dolores Sanchez, and she was born in Seville, in the celebrated Triana fau'ong. She is the daughter of poor parents. She entered the service of a modiste as an errand-girl at twelve years of age. But she soon developed a liking for sport, and some two years age she appeared on horseback in the ring, as door-opener of the torel, through which the bull plunges into the arena. She was applauded with frantic enthusiasm. Last year she figured in the fights and killed three bulls in one famous corida. She then appeared in the ring at Arabel, Alcala and Guadaira, and brought down her, furious antagonist every time. This year she has also killed several bulls at Cordoba, Jaen, Linares and Vallecas. In the last-named place, when she advanced and flung out her mantle, the bull advanced stealthily and then made a sudden plunge, sending her flying in the air grievously wounded. She was removed from the ring, but reappeared a few minutes afterward, and, after several scientific passes, killed the bull with a splendid thrust most artistically delivered. La Fragosa has now some grand engagements for the performances at Cadiz, Grenada, Malaga, Anance, was feted at a great banque; at which 400 of and, after several scientification of artistically delivered. La Fragosa has now some grand engagements for the performances at Cadiz, Grenada, Malaga, Antequera, Ubeda, Linarez, Montoro, Seville, Barcelona and Valentia. She is a girl of medium height, of exquisite figure and pretty features.

may become not only uncommonly attractive, but may also be blended into absolute rarity. To illustrate the above assertion. This particular Smith family is composed of father and mother and only thirteen children. Mother Smith, or Aunt Fannie Smith, as she is familiarly known, has a remarkable aptitude for improving every opportunity to its best advantage, and for practi-cal views and sound execution has became famous as the head of this Smith family. Father Ambrose Smith made her many years ago his second wife, and as he was then growing old she assumed the responsibilities of the farm and house hold and later of the rapidly increasing family. The first marked demonstration of not only her willingness, but her ability to cope with serious questions with an eye-to successful result, was in the naming of her children. She was named Smith, because in the nature of things she could not help it, but she at once determined that as her progeny had to start life with this handicap, that she would at least mellow its harshness by a wise application of her good judgment.

Note how well she succeeded. Among the many of the fold are the following names given me by Aunt Fannie herself, with a degree of pride at once suggestive of her self-satisfaction: Wilson Hamilton, Martha Jane Kirby, Mary Elizabeth, Melissa Emmeline, Caledonia Josephine, Tallulah Magdalene, Symanthia Magnolia, Jaconia Elma, Fannie Wilson, Florida Davis, Delphy, Perrilee, to each of which add - Smith.

Father Smith is now in his eightieth year and was born seven miles from where he now lives. As he sat being his brow with his shirt sleeve by a gentle tion of his whole arm, he looked at our party and asked: "Do you'uns know Joe Brown?"

On being answered in the affirmative, he con-"Well, I 'lowed you did. See that mountain over thar on the Caroliny side? Joe Brown was born nigh it, and his folks didn't live mor'n four miles from here. I remembers him well. His r used to run the mill, and many's the time I've rid thar and seed Joe plowin' in them fields. grown then, but I remember that Joe was looked n as a mighty peart boy. One thing I do rem Thar never was a man in this neighborhood that ever said that Joe's par didn't tote squar with him in his tolls,"

Sinking Mountain, in the Smith domain, is a cele rated natural phenomena, to which the party of which I was a member was attracted from Tailulah alls in the early part of the past week. Profes sor H. C. White, of the State university, was along and as the leading geologist and chemist of the south, and one of foremost in this country, his as to this strange freak of nature is of great value in the scientific world, as the first authentic expression concerning it. The mountain is one of a chain along the Chattooga river, the line between Georgia and Caro-lina, and is on the Georgia side. On a bright spring morning, seven years ago, Aunt Fanule Smith drifted out of the immediate precincts of her home looking for some of her cattle which had ocen unaccounted for the night before. In her search she veered around this mountain into the valley and to her horror and astonishment saw above her what appeared to be immense excava-tions in the side of the mountain. Immense trees lay with their limbs and foliage on the gro any torn asunder and others buried beneath huge boulders and accumulated earth. On the mo ain side was the clear outline of a freshly formed clay excavation, from beneath which the lowe side of the mountain seemed to have been cut. Mrs. Smith's first thought was of Indians, and rushing back home she alarmed the neighbor hood by the statement that Indian were in the vicinity, for she had seen where they had been working. As the exodus of the Indians this section had taken place many decades previously, it is not astonishing that the quiet pered people of the valley grew excited at such positive statement from such undisputed authority as the word of Aunt Fannie. To the mountain the neighborhood went prepared for a renewal of the hostilities which had ceased since their fathers were children. But there fathers were no Indians to be seen, nor was any trace left of them except the immense cut in the mountain side. Weeks passed and the cut grow deeper, and the half of the mountain which appeared to be severed from the other, continued to sink with erfect regularity. Visitors by hundreds were attracted to the scene, and came back with thrilling stories of a half mountain absolutely sinking into the earth. The evidence was there, clear to any

But Aunt Fannie ceased to be troubled about Indians or superstition, or natural phenomena, and again exhibited her practical sense by profiting off of the visitors that found their way into her domain, to see the sinking mountain. She did it at the rate of fifty cents a meal, but if ever a dinner was worth anything, that half dollar investment was for full value received. Parties go out daily from Tallulah falls, seveu miles distant, spending the day at this hospitable retreat and re-turning in the afternoon. There were thirteen in our party, an unlucky number, some say; but to be concluded to count married couples one, which reduced our number to eleven and a half, one married couple being present, and one married man-aphysician—whose wife was not present. GENERAL JOHN B. GORDON was born in Walker county, Ga., February 6, 1852. His family is of Scotch descent. He was educated at the University of Georgia, but did not remain at that institution to graduate. He wanted to get married, it seems, and did not want to wait until he graduated. He studied law, but did not give much attention to that profession. He turned his attention to business, and became interested in coal tion to that profession. He turned his atten-tion to business, and became interested in coal mining in north Alabama. At the time that Georgia passed the ordi-nance of secession he was in Milledgeville, and when Alabama went out of the union he and when Alabama went out of the union he was at Montgomery. He raised a cavalry company for the confederate service in Jackson county, Alabama, where he was engaged in coal mining. There was no demand for cavalry at that time and so he formed an infantry company, which was accepted by the governor of the state. This company became known as the "Raccoon Roughs." This company became a part of the Sixth Alabama regiment, of which Captain Gordon was elected major, subsequently lieutenant colonel, and, in 1862, at Yorktown, Va., colonel.

It says that the first serious engagement in which his regiment participated was that of Seven Pines," where it made a glorious scord. More than two-thirds of the comma il are said to have been killed or wounded. The lieutenant-colonel, the major and the adjutant were among the former. The horses of the mounted officers were also killed, that ridden by Colonel Gordon being the least to fall. The by Colonel Gordon being the last to fall. The heaviest fatality occurred when, having taken the federal breastworks, the regiment was or-dered to drive the enemy from a dense swamp, strongly fortified by temporary barriers of fallen trees. It was while gallantly leading this charge that Colonel Gordon's horse was this charge that Colonel Gordon's horse was fatally shot, and soon after fell under him in the midst of a heavy musketry fire of the opposing forces. His escape from death was most remarkable, as out of 600 men 396 were killed or wounded, one company of forty members having only ten survivors.

In the seven days' battles around Richmond and the Malvern Hill conflict, Colonel Gordon commanded Rhodes' brigade and, led the desperate charge upon the federal batteries for a hart mite through an open field, his troops being first in the charge, in consequence of

His losses were very heavy in killed and wounded, yet the survivors readily rallied at the call of their leader, and in the battle of Boonsboro, or South Mountain, he again distinguished himself at their head. It was on the field of Sharpsburg, however, It was on the field of Sharpsburg, however, that General Gordon gave unmistanable evidence of his great qualities as a soldier. In the disposition for the battle Gordon's regiment occupied a salient place in the confederate line. It was his habit before taking his men into action to make a few remarks designed to act upon their imagination and raise their enthusiasm. As General D. H. Hill was riding along the line just before the fight began, looking with evident concern at the weak portions of it, Gordon, auxibus to strengthen his men in their determination to hold their position, exclaimed: "General Hill, you need not fear for this portion of the line; these men are going to stay here." The men caught the spirit of the words and the assurance was carried along the line: "Yes, we have come to stay."

spiit of the words and the assurance was carried along the line: "Yes, we have come to stay."

Immediately after the battle became fierce and the slaughter appalling. Line after line of the enemy was repulsed by this heroic regiment, with a deadly fire both on its front and right flank. Only six men from the whole right wing escaped. Colonel Gordon was twice wounded early in the fight, two balls passing through his right leg, but he refused to leave the field. An hour later he was shot again, a ball passing through his left arm, making a painful and terrible wound, from which he bled profusely. In this shocked and weakened condition, another ball penetrated his shoulder near the previous wound, yet he refused to leave the field, preferring to stand by his few surviving comrades in the bloody contest. But soon after a fifth ball struck him, passing entirely through his left cheek and bringing him senseless to the ground. The courage that had defied death and kept the field with five unstaunched wounds was sublime; and the characters of heroic resolution were written, clear and stern to the last, in the pale face stained with his own blood. He fell near the enemy's lines, but when consciousness returned he mansged to get back to his men, and by them was tenderly carried to the rear.

managed to get back to his men, and by them was tenderly carried to the rear.
Colonel Gordon was removed to Winchester, and it was several months before he was considered out of danger. His noble and devoted wife nursed him with a tenderness and fidelity that finally won him back, as it were, from the very mouth of the grave. His heroic conduct had not escaped the attention of the superior officers, and in April, 1863, he was promoted to be a brigadier general and placed in command of what had been known as Genoral A. R. Lawton's Georgia brigade. His first exploit in this new position was at Marye's Hill, in front of Fredericksburg, about a month later, when he retook the heights by a brilliant charge.

month later, when he retook the heights by a brilliant charge.

In the outset of the Pennsylvania campuign, General Gordon was with Ewell at the capture of Milroy's forces in Winchester. He crossed into Maryland and moved in front of the confederate army on the Gettysburg, Yorkville and Wrightsville pike. Entering York with his troops, he found the population in great alarm, dreading all manner of outrages, and the women and children making preparations for flight. But he quited their fears by a touching little speech. He soon returned to York and thence to Gettysburg to take part in the great battles fought there. On the arrival of Early's divisien, he was sent to support Rhodes, whose left was being turned. He saw his opportunity, and by a bold and rapid charge broke the line guarding the right flank of the federal army, after an almost handte-hand conflict, and then struck the flank, pressed heavil award, broke the front and a most brilliant charge," as officially reported, and the results showed an amount of execution greater, perhaps, than was ever accomplished in similar circumstances of the war by the same number of men. Gordon left on the field, counted by the inspectors, more than 400 dead of the enemy.

It was on the stormy lines of the Rapidan that he performed his chief part in history and achieved his great renown. In the first day's fight he was in a position that drew all eyes upon him. On May 5 his command was on the pike leading from Orange courthouse to Fredericksburg. The confederate troops in his front had been engaged for some time, when they were overpowered and forced to retreat rapidly. General Ewell rode up to Gordon, who was quietly moving down the pike at the head of his column, and said: "General Gordon, they are driving us; the fate of the day depends on you." Gordon replied: "We will save it, general," and immediately wheeling into line, he told his men what was expected of them, and ordered them forward, riding in their front. The charge was successful.

At Spottsylvania Courthouse, Gordon was a conspicuous actor in one of the most memorable and dramatic passages of the war. It was here that, put in command of Early's division (Early taking command of A. P. Hill's corps), he gave the first check to the enemy advancing after taking the salient held by General Johnson, and it was here occurred the affecting and noble scene when he seized the bridle of General Lee's horse and refused to let him lead the Georgians and Virginians, placed in line for a desperate counter charge upon the enemy. In the dark and misty morning, Gordon had been guided to the point of danger by the volume of fire. Checking the enemy and throwing his little command against the heavy tide of his numbers, he afterwards recaptured all the confederate line to the right of the salient, some of the artillery lost in the morning, and held during the day the salient, and all to right of it to A. P. Hill's line.

After this battle, marked by i

Returning to the army of northern Virginia, in front of Petersburg, General Gordon found but little opportunity to gather additional laurels in the declining fortunes of the confederacy; and it only remained for him to share the fate which, from overwhelming numbers of the enemy, had now become inevitable to that army which his courage, chivalry and good generalship had so greatly adorned. His part was heroic to the last. It was Gordon's command chiefly engaged in the battle of Harcs Hill, (March 25, 1865), where the troops "fought with a vigor and brilliancy that reminded one of Lee's old campaigus," it was Gordon's command that held the last lines in front of Petersburg, and it was Gordon's command that in Lee's final and fatal retreat was at the front, and gilded the last scene of surrender with the spectacle of 2,000 men prepared to cut through Sheridan's lines at Appomattox court house, and were only stayed in the desperate enterprise by the flag of truce that concluded the hostilities of that day and signaled the close of the war. Returning to the army of northern Virgin-naled the close of the war.

After the cessation of hostilities, General Gordon retired to the pursuits of private life. In 1868 he was nominated for the position of gover-nor of Georgia, and ran against the republican candidate, R. B. Bullock. The campaign was a warm one, and it was generally thought, and in many quarters positively asserted, that he was elected by some 6,000 or 7,000 majority, but was "counted out."

In 1873, when the legislature came to elect a United States senator, he was put in nomi-nation. Hon. Alexander H. Stephens, Benjamin H. Hill and others were also candidates. After a number of ballotings, Gordon was chosen.

At the end of his term, Senator Gordon was re-elected, but served only one year, when, in 1880, he resigned to engage 'in railroad business. His career in the national councils had been conspicuously able and influential.

After a period of nearly six years devoted to railroad enterprises, General Gordon has unprecedented perhaps in Georgia politits for personalities and slanders.

First-class investments find ready sale, but home inquiries have dropped off a trifie, except for state bonds. The longer date states are difficult to buy in quantities sufficient for filling orders.

The upward movement in Georgia railroad stock seems to be brought about by buyers for investment, though there are rumors of an extra dividend, which have doubtless had some effect in this direction. We don't know whether there is any foundation for these rumors, but the company has a snug sum in net earnings from their banking business, which is the property of the stockholders, and of which they will some day reap the fruits.

The advance in Central is not, as far as we have The advance in Central is not, as far as we have heard, definitely accounted for, but our theory has it that the collapse of the Savannah, Dublin and Western road is the cause, while another says the buying by outsiders for a control of the preperty is doing the business. We don't know whether either of these stories are true, but feel safe in saying that if there is a movement to buy a controlling quan

NEW YORK, July 31.—In the early morning's NEW YORK, July 31.—In the early morning's dealings at the stock exchange special activity and strength was shown by Missouri, Kansas and Texas, principally on an extension of the money pool among southwestern roads, although the movement was helped by some buying by Chicago people. Vanderbilts continued their upward course, London again being a free buyer. The rise was accompanied by a report that the dividend would be increased later on in the year, and the story of the union of Vanderbilt lines into one corporation was again revived. The afternoon trading was marked by an advance in Lackawama and Grangers. The opening prices were generally

Died from Starvation, Cholera Infantum and other Infantile disorders in New York City during 1885, while the entire mortality was only 35,682.

15.267 CHILDREN DIED UNDER FVE YEARS OF AGE.

12,307 BABIES DIED UNDER TWO YEARS OF AGE.

9,303 BABIES DIED UNDER ONE YEAR OF AGE.

The Majority of these Babies were fed upon Cow's Milk or some Starchy Food. Thi Fearful Mortality proves that neither of the above Foods can be relied upon. DO NOT USE COW'S MILK, BECAUSE THE CASEIN WILL FORM INTO CURDS IN the childs stomach and produce Cholera Infantum.

DO NOT USE CONDENSED MILK, BECAUSE NEARLY ALL OF IT CONTAINS about half cane sugar, and will cause acid fermentation and Cholera Infantum.

DO NOT USE PREPARED FOODS WHICH CONTAIN STARCH OR WHICH MUST BE mixed with milk, BECAUSE the child cannot digest raw starch, and none of these foods will thoroughly nourish it.

After Careful Investigation Every Intelligent Person Must Admit that

CARNRICK'S SOLUBLE FOOD

Is the Only Perfect Food for Infants and Children Ever Produced.

WHY?

BECAUSE IT PERFECTLY RESEMBLES A GOOD QUALITY OF MOTHER'S MILK, AND will therefore thoroughly nourish the child without the addition of condensed

BECAUSE IT HAS BEEN SHOWN BY DR. STUTZER. THE BEST KNOWN FOOD AN alyst in the world, to perfectly resemble a good quality of human milk in digestibility and composition.

BECAUSE IT WILL PREVENT CHOLERA INFANTUM AND SUMMER COMPLAINTS in children.

BECAUSE IT IS ALWAYS READY FOR USE AND REQUIRES NO SPECIAL CARE IN BECAUSE IT WILL KEEP FOR ANY LENGTH OF TIME. NECESITATES NEITHER THE admission of milk nor cream.

BECAUSE IT IS THE ONLY FOOD FOR INFANTS THAT WILL THOROUGHLY NOUR-BECAUSE IT IS THE ONLY FOOD THAT DIGESTS AS EASILY AS HUMAN MILK,

BECAUSE IT IS THE ONLY PREPARED FOOD WHERE THE CHEESY PART OF THE milk is rendered as soluble as that in human milk.

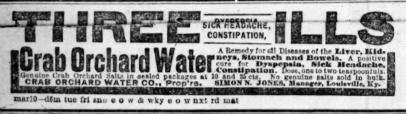

BECAUSE IT IS THE ONLY FOOD THAT CONTAINS THE REQUISITE QUANTITY OF lime to properly nourish and make the bones and teeth. BECAUSE IT IS THE ONLY FOOD THAT WILL AGREE WITH CHILDREN ALMOST

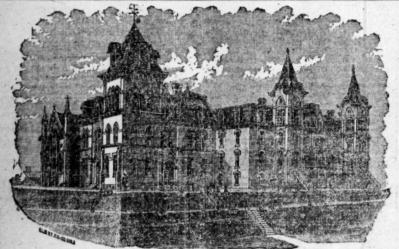

No other food except hum an milk will answer these requirements. A single trial in comparison with any other foods will convince you that these statements are true. Nature Versus Art—The Troubles and Accidents Incident to Children—Mrs. Arp Away From Home, and Willism in the Role of an Autocrat—An Interesting Letter.

Nature can beat art sometimes. I've been to the theater afore now, and the players acted the play so natural and sympathetic that I got all tangled up and excited, and would cry or laugh just as they did; but nature can beat art sometimes. Just about sundown, the other evening, while we were all sitting in the piazza calm and serene, there was a wild shrick down at the corner of the garden, and it was Carl calling, and he said, Run here to Linton. Linton is killed; run, papa; run somebody, and we did run, and Mrs. Arp and the girls cried, Oh, mercy! Oh, good Lord! and all sorts of interjections and conjunctions at every step, and there was a wild and fearful panic when we got to the boy, and he was lying pale and senseless on the rocky ground, with a big limb across his breast. He had fallen about twelve feet from the top of a venerable apple tree that, they say, was planted by the Indians about sixty years ago. I heaved the old broken limb off of the boy and took him in my arms and then up the hill to the house, and my escort oh, oh my escort, with their cries and screams, demoralized me fearfully. He was a stout lad of thinteen, this grandson of ours, and as tough as a pine knot, and I knew he was hurt, badly hurt, but Lean always keep calm and serene on such occasions if the women will let me. Laying him gently on the bed, Mrs. Arp ripped his garments with trembling hands and motherly sobbings to find the flowing blood and the gaping wounds, and broken limbs, but they were not there. He was shocked and senseless, and breathed hard and gurgled in his throat, and groaned and sighed, but I had seen those signs before with the the other boys and had faith. And, sure enough, in about an hour he came to himself, and looking around upon the excited family asked what was the matter, and said "Grandma, I dreamed I was falling from the apple tree." The doctor came about that time and found his arm and shoulder badly bruised and one rib hurt, perhaps fractured, and said he would be awful sore for a day or two, and then get well and be ready for the next skirmish. But Mrs. Arp was not satisfied, and watched him all night, and as he slept she listened to his breathing and felt his pulse and imagined that something was internally wrong. The boy carries his arm in a handkerchief now, and can't go in a washing nor shoot a sling nor climb a tree, and he and Carl have to stay in the house moralized me fearfully. He was a stout lad of his arm in a handkerchief now, and can't go in a washing nor shoot a sling nor climb a tree, and he and Carl have to stay in the house and read story books and look at the pictures. But the like of this has to happen. It is part of a boy's raising. I wasent much account until I fell down a ladder head foremost and was picked up for dead. I told my wife I wouldent give a cent for a boy who had never fell out of an apple tree or got his arm broke or his head gashed or something of the kind. If a man has never had any narrow, escapes, or any wounds, or any broken bones. escapes, or any wounds, or any broken bones, or been thrown from a horse and picked up for dead, what kind of a father will he be? What has he got to tell his little boy, and excite his wonder and admiration? I had lots cite his wonder and admiration? I had lots of mishaps myself, and as I grow older Mrs. Arp says they grow more bigger and more numerous. Well, of course! Nobody wants to tell the same old thing the same old way a thousand times. Amplification is a sign of genius. Being knocked down and addled, is a big thing; but to be picked up for dead is heroic.

I've got these children to watch now. Mrs. Arp has gone to visit her old home in Gwinnett, and she gave me awhole catalogue of admenitions and ordinations and recapitulations, which I've forgotten already. She has gone to see brothers and their wives and children, and the dear old home where her father and mother used to wear the parental arrawal and mother bear and mother bower than a king. What a sacred temple was that old family room. It was the court where she brought all her childish troubles and got comfort. She remembers every nail in the floor, every brick in the hearth, every knot in the ceiling overhead. She wanted to see the big old oaks in the heart ward nader where you do she played. in the hearth, every knot in the ceiling overhead. She wanted to see the big old oaks in the back yard, under whose stade she played and swung and bad her playhouse of broken china. The cooing pigeons made love upon their spreading limbs by day and the noisy katydids by night. She wanted to see the big old spring at the foot of the hill, for she knew there was no change, no decay, no mortality there. The wa-change, no decay, no mortality there. The wa change, no decay, no mortality there. The water is still running and though the frog and the crawfish and the spring lizzard that used to excite her youthful fears have departed this life interstate, they left children to inherit and erjoy that peaceful shady spring. The little branch still flows on over its gravelly bed and down into the little fish pond below, and the ripple of its waters still sings that same old song: same old song:

"For men may come and men may go,
But I go on forever."

I know that her memory will linger there sweetly, for she used to wade in that brauch, and she would like to wade in it again if nobody was looking, but I reckon she won't.

There is a 'simple there is the bill." I know that her memory will linger there sweetly, for she used to wade in that brauch, and she would like to wade in that brauch, and she would like to wade in tagain if nobody was looking, but I reckon she won't. There is a 'simmon tree on the hill close by that she used to climb in the fall of the year, for she was as fond of 'simmons as a 'possum, but she will never climb it any more; I reckon she won't. The grape vipe swing at the beck of the garden and the saplings now. Old Aunt Peggy has gone, too; gone where the good darkies go. She was always old and wrinkled and dried up, but she was faithful unto death, and the children loved her. Nobody knew how old she was. For forty consecutive years she said she was a hundred—no more no less—always a hundred. But dearest of all is the old grave yard that is close by. The village grave yard where "the rude forefathers of the hamlet sleep." I know she will linger there with sweet and sad emotions, for there sleep her nearest and dearest ones—father and mother and brothers and an only sister, and sweetest of all, a dear little babe of her own. How surely does life and love repeat the scenes of our youth. Hers were fond parents and there was a flock of children, fair children, all hopeful and happy and loving and they were ten, just ten. She and I have succeeded them and we have ten, just ten. We, too, have a cottage home and as pring at the foot of the hill and a branch for the children to play in, and a fish pond, and big oaks with pigeons cooing on the limbs. Just; as they had we have pea fowls to scream, and ducks and chickens, and sheep and cattle, and dogs bark and cats purr, and our children and grandchildren come and go, and by and by we will go to sleep and leave them all alone, just as we were left.

And this is right, all right. When we have served our day and generation then let us go. Let us marshal them the way of life and christian hope of a reunion. Not a reunion like the soldiers have, that comes come a last." What a welcome to the orphan when the aug

I see a lame guines hopping around, and it hops very like a slingshot struck it. They killed a pigeon not long ago and said they didn't mean to hit it, but was just trying to see how close they could miss it. I found my first and biggest melon plugged in the patch, and, though I didn't believe they would do me that mean, I held a court-martial and took testimony and looked as fierce and majestic as possible. They declared their innocence and showed a heap of wounded feelings and told how they found our little darky's knife in the melon patch, and so the little darky surrendered and confessed, which never was done by a darky before and his mother whipped him from Dan to Beersheba and my boys were discharged with honor and the commendation of the cent. Carl is a very good boy by himself and Linton is good by himself. Each of them work well in single harness, but hitch them together to a wagon and they are bound to break something. I'm going for these chaps while Mrs. Arp is away. I'm for civil service reform now. Their mothers are afar off and I'm the autocrat. I'll teach them how to grabble the goobers before they are ripe.

No, I won't either, and they know I won't. These boys are mighty good to me. They bring me fresh water from the spring without being told. They black my shoes when I am going to town. They follow me around the farm and help me get roasting ears. They listen to my marvelous stories with an affectionate wonder that flatters my vanity. They borrow my pocket knife. They find my hat and my walking stick, and help me dig the potatoes for dinner. They are good company, these boys, now that Jessie has gone. I miss "Jessie, the flower of Dumblane." She is my special comfort when I am ailing or have the blues. She rubs my head and brushes my backhair and talks so loving and kind, and always kisses me goodnight after she has said her prayers.

he avenly stories in the Georgia Scenes. Both of these notable men always found welcome at their father's house, and while the judge was discoursing sweet music in the parlor. Old Father Turner was walking the piazza, interceding in silent prayer for his forgiveness and reform. There were never two Christian men more unlike than they, but they are both in heaven now, and maybe Uncle Allan has got reconciled to music. CONDENSED MILK PURE, FRESH, UNSKIMMED.

Pure water is in reality one of the most important requisites of good milk. The country around Northville is peculiarly well adapted to dairying. The land is hilly and very fertile, and contains the very finest clover pastures of our State. Cold springs come to the surface all over, no farm being without them. This gives abundant water at all times accessible to the cows: To secure the very cows. A large spring on one side of our works accessible to the cows: To secure the very company of the market. There is nothing manufactured that is so quickly tainted, and requires so much care and clean-liness, as milk. We therefore located our works in the center of a large farm of 160 acres, free from foul odors, gases and germs. The milk is received and evaporated within four hours from the time it is drawn from the care and clean-liness, as milk. A DANGEROUS FALL.—Mattie Lee Houston ten-year-old girl, who lives on Thompson street, at No. 197, fell backwards from the front verandah yesterday and was soyer-ly hurt. The fall was about ten feet. The child was setting on a railing, swinging to and fro, and losing her balance toppled over. Her head struck the sidewalk with such force that she was knocked senseless and remained so for some time.

The Conservative Citizens.—The meeting at Concordia hall night before last is attracting considerable attention, and the course of the officers is being closely watched. Yesterday the meeting was freely discussed, and a great deal of speculatian was indulged in. It is said that the officers who were elected Friday night will meet early next week and select an executive committee. When this committee is organized the city will be thoroughly canvassed, and the name of every man who is in sympathy with the meeting will be enrolled.

ATLANTA TAKES THE PRIZE.-Bob Steele, ATTANTA TAKES THE PRIZE—BOD Steele, the Marietta street barber, received a telegram from Chattanooga last night stating that the Fulton Guards and the Governor's Volunteers had won both prizes, in the military contest and wen other prizes, in the mintary contest among the colored military troops in that city. The Fulton Guards took the first prize. The news created quite a feeling of pride among the colored people last night, and when the Atlanta companies get back they will be met at the union passenger depot with brass bands and watermelons.

DR. CHANEY.—This morning Dr. Chaney will conduct his last service for the season at the church of Our Father. He will spend his vacation at the north and will attend the meeting of the national conference of Unitarian and other Christian churches, to be held at Sanstona in Santember Oute a number of Atlanta people expect to attend this great convention, which takes place every two years. During September Rev. E. C. L. Browne, pastor of the beautiful and venerable Unitarian church in Charleston, S. C., will occupy the pulpit of the church of Our Father.

G. U. O. of ODD FELLOWS.—The district grand lodge of United Order of Odd Fellows No. 18 of Georgia will convene in Atlanta on Tuesday and will remain in session until Thursday. About a year ago bis little child died and the About a year ago bis little child died and the corpse had to be carried two hundred yards by hand, as that was as near as a hearse could get to Mr. Konkle's residence. Yesterday Mr. Konkle's infant child died, and that corpse also had to be carried two hundred yards. Mr. Konkle says he don't know what he is taxed for. He has called on Mr. Mitchell, his councilman, about the bad condition of the street. Mr. Mitchell told him the order had been passed up for Ira street to be worked. The street is full of holes nearly as big as a room.

SIXTY-NINE COUNTY DIGESTS .-- The tax digests are arriving from the various counties of the state in numbers each day, and sixtynine have been docketed in the comptroller's office to date. Fourteen were received yesterday, twelve of which show an increase over last year's returns as follows: Charlton, $5,170; Hart, $24,960; Habersham, $106 556; Fayette, $22,115; Oconee, $5,447; Walton, $111,531; De-Kalb, $349,406; Laurens, $61,860, Miller, $1,590; Irwin, $35,490; Berrien, $64,521; Dooly, $67,737. These make up the handsome total of $870,413; but it is materially reduced by the returns from the other two counties, which are off, Troup, $107,043, and Dougherty, $314,378, leaving a net gain of $454,992, or a total increase in sixty-nine counties of $2,917,442. digests are arriving from the various counties

A BAD RUNAWAY,—A spirited horse and a noisy screeking well windlass created a sad havec on Garnett street yesterday. At the corper of Thompson and Garnett is a well. The water is drawn from the well by a windlass and when the crank is turned the most hideous, disagreeable noise imaginable is produced. Vesterday aftercom just as a duced. Yesterday afternoon just as a drayman passed the corner some one began drawing a bucket of water. The noise was loud enough to attract the attention of the horse. It was an unusual sort of noise, and the horse began looking about for the cause, and not finding it began to jump and plunge. The driver started to rein the steed in, but this added to his determination to leave the locality of the noise and he skipped despite the driver's strory are. The wagon was spite the driver's strong arm. The wagon was loaded with watermelons and at every step one or two would drop out of the wagon. The borse continued his race for three blocks and then stopped. The driver went back over his route but did not find a watermelon worth nicking up.

HON. JOHN T. HENDERSON

REAPPOINTED COMMISSIONER OF AGRICULTURE YESTERDAY.

His Term of Office Expiring by Limitation August fifth, Governor McDaniel Reappoints Him, and Orders Him Commissioned Uatil the Meeting of the Naxt Legislature.

Commissioner of agriculture, Hon. John T. Henderson, has been reappointed. Yesterday Governor McDaniel issued the following order:

State of Georgia, Executive Department, Atlanta, Ga., July 31, 1886.—Whereas, the term of office of Hon. John T. Henderson, as commissioner of agriculture, will expire by limitation on the 26th day of August next; it is Ordered, That the said John T. Henderson be and he is hereby reappointed commissioner of agriculture for this state, to hold said office from and after said 26th of August next, until the next meeting of the general assembly of this state, and that he be commissioned accordingly,

HENEY D. McDaniel.

By the Governor:

By the Governor: J. W. Warren, Secretary Ex. Department. Several applications were on file before Governor McDaniel for the position, but the re-appointment of Commissioner Renderson meets with heartiest approval. He brings to the discharge of the du-ties of the office the experience of several terms of service and long years of practical life on a farm.

John T. Henderson was born in Newton county.

service and long years of practical life on a farm.

John T. Henderson was born in Newton county, Ga., December 18, 1826, and is therefore in his sixtieth year. He is erect and active, and as hale and vigorous as a man of fifty and no doubt has many years of usefulness yet before him. His early years were spent on a farm and his young manhood was devoted to those pursuits which awoke in him a taste for and proper conception of the duties of his present position. He was a student of Emory college, in this state, for two years and was graduated from William and Mary college, Virginia. After serving throughout the war in the confederate army, he resumed the life of a farmer when peace was declared. He was subsequently honored by the people of his native county by being called to the responsible post of judge of Newton court. In 1879 he was apppinted commissioner of agriculture for the state of Georgia, and to his energy and intelligent conduct of the affairs of the department are due its present state of efficiency and importance in the state government.

Having spent the greater portion of his life on are due its present state of emclency and importance in the state government.

Having spent the greater portion of his life on the farm, he is acquainted with the needs of farmers and can give intelligent direction to the workings of his office from a practical standpoint. His reappointment comes squarely within the true meaning of civil service reform, and will meet with hearty commendation from the people of the state.

JUDGE M'CAY'S DEATH. A Meeting of the Bar Held Yesterday and What They Did.

At 10 o'clock yesterdsy morning the bar held a meeting in the United States court room to take action relative to the death of Judge H. K.

McCay.

Colonel P. L. Mynatt was upon motion called to the chair, and Alex. W. Smith requested to act as secretary.

The chairman in a touchingly beautiful manner stated to the members of the bar present the ob-ject of the meeting, and asked that anyone who desired to say anything of the distinguished de-ceated do so.

Mayor George Hillyer arose and said that he had known Judge McCay long and intimately, and considered him one of the most learned lawyers in the state. He spoke in MoST COMPLIMENTARY TERMS of Judge McCay's work in the constitutional convention in 1867, and his conservative course. Mayor Hillyer said that in the death of Judge McCay the bar of Georgia had lost an able and esteemed representative.

Colonel Pike Hill followed Mayor Hillyer, and paid a deserved compliment to the deceased. He said he had known him for years, and a truer man never lived. As a lawyer he had no peer, and as a

Colonel Pike Hill followed Mayor Hillyer, and paid a deserved compliment to the deceased. He said he had known him for years, and a truer man never lived. As a lawyer he had no peer, and as a judge, few equals. He always tempered mercy witn justice.

Judge Howard Van Epps, of the city court, followed Colonel Hill in a beautiful and touching talk, saying that he had always looked upon Judge McCay as one of the brightest lights of the legal profession. He was a Christian gentleman, and did not fear to do the right.

DISTRICT ATTORNEY B. H. HILL secured the floor, and paid a deserved tribute to the life and character of the deceased. Being intimately associated with Judge McCay for some time, and every day witnessing his many noble traits of character, he had learned to reverence him. He was a just judge and a Christian gentleman. Mr. Hill's remarks were listened to with marked attention.

Colonel E. N. Broyles, H. E. Erwin, Jack J. Spalding, George S. Thomas and other members of the bar spoke in the highest terms of the deceased. District Attorney Hill moved that a committee be appointed to prepare a suitable memorial of Judge McCay, and that the same be presented at the fall term of the United States district court and entered on the minutes of the court, THE MOTION WAS ADOPTED, and the chalr appointed as the committee:

Hillyer, Hon. D. B. Hamilton, Hon T. W. Millner, Colonel A. E. Culberson, Colonel E. N. Broyles, and General William Phillips.

Upon motion of J. H. Lumpkin, the chair appointed the following committee to suggest the death of Judge McCay at the next term of the supreme court and to prepare a suitable memorial.
J. H. Lumpkin, Judge R. P. Trippe, Hon. B. F.
Abbott, Colonel Hoke Smith and Judge J. I. Hall.
The chair appointed the following as pall-bearers:

W. T. Turnbull.

The pall-bearers are requested to meet at C. H. Switt's undertaking rooms promptly at 4 o'clock this afterneon.

Members of the bar are carnestly requested to attend the funeral in a body. The funeral services will be held from the Central Presbyterian church at five o'clock. Interment at Oakland cemetery.

The Pomological Society.

The regular meeting of the pomological society was held in the agricultural department society was held in the agricultural department yesterday morning.

The attendance was good and the exhibis of fruits highly creditable. Two new members were elected. H. Thaden and Dr. J. S. Lawton.

Dr. Hape read an interesting paper on strawberries, and J. C. Bucher one on raspherries.

Dr. S. Hape and Mr. H. M. Sessions, delegates to the state horticultural society, reported a fine meeting and large attendance at Fort Valley. Mr. P. J. Berckmans, of Augusta, was re-elected president, with T. L. Kinsey secretary. Daiton will be the next place of meeting.

Georgia farmers are fearning the value of these agricultural and horticultural societies. Wherever one is maintained in a county with lively interest by the farmers its influence is shown in improved methods of agriculture, a greater yield on given territory and higher intelligence among the planters. All such institutions should be encouraged and fostered in every county of the state.

City. Mr. Burwell Taylor, of Live Oak, Florida, died yesterday evening at five o'clock, at the residence of Mrs. Charles Gause, No. 58 Luckie street.

Mr. Taylor was in his fitieth year, and was a son of the late Judge H. L. Taylor, of Cuthbert, Georgis. The deceased was at the time of his death worshipful master of the Masonic lodge at Live Oak, Florida. He was a graduate of Emory college, in the class of 1857. He was a prominent citizen of Live Oak, and ranked among the first as a lawyer. His remains will clizen of Live Oak, and ranked among the first as a lawyer. His remains will leave this afternoon at 3 o'clock on the Central railroad for Live Oak. About three weeks ago the deceased with his wife started to Marietta, Ga., hoping to regain his health having had a lingering attack of malarial fever. Upon his arrival in Atlanta he was too feeble to continue his trip, and stopped with his cousin, Mrs. Gause, where he was kindly cared fer during his last illness, Dr. J. F. Alexander attended him and gave him all the attention in his power, but his disease bailed the physician's skill, and he passed quietly away. He had several intimate acquaintances in the city who knew him well in his youthful days. His death will be a cause of sadness to many.

Milestones on the Road to Health. The recovery of digestion, and the resumption of activity by the liver, bowels and kid tion of activity by the liver, bowels and kidneys, are milestones which mark our progress on the road to health. They speedily become perceptible when Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is used by the invalid Nothing so surely and expeditiously consumes the distance to the desired goal. As no bodily function can suffer interruption without impairing the general health of the system, so the system can never acquire perfect vigor, health's synonym, until that function be actively resumed. Take, for instance, digestion, a suspension of which is invariably rectified by the Bitters. If the organs upon which it devolves grow weak, billousness, constipation, headache, poverty of the Bloed, and a hundred other symptoms superveise, which indicate unmistakably the baneful reneral influence of dyspepsis. The disappearance of all these symptoms, through the use of the Bitters, show with what thoroughness it removes their cause.

adding new machines and making robust help.

The writer has been in the furniture business and feels capable of expressing an inteligent opinion on the subject, and must say that the goods shipped by this firm are the best constructed and duished of any goods of the class be has seen from anywhere, while the imitation of walnut is complete, and not many, except the best judges can tell the difference.

The efforts of these gontlemen are evid ntly appreciated as their pondereus wagons are daily passing fully loaded, passing to the different railroad depots and retail furniture houses throughout the city.

Thornton & Selkirk

One of the strongest and most reliable firms in the city is Messrs. Thornton & Selkirk. Both of these gentlemen are young men who thoroughly understand their business, and are enterprising and progressive. Their store on Whitehall street is headquarters in the city for stationery and alto goods of every kind. They make to order the latest styles of picture frames, and their stock of stationery and blank books cannot be excelled.

If in need of anything in their line rest assured that they can please you and will give you a bargain. Don't fail to call and look at their blank broks. They have the largest stock in the city and will sell them cheap. For the next week they will make a run on ledgers, journals, day books and everything in fact in the line of blank books.

John Keely. This sterling merchant calls attention this morning to his new fall goods, which, in very large quantities he has been receiving. He is large quantities he has been receiving. He is also clearing out his summer goods at very greatly reduced prices. You can observe that in dealing with him you always get what you pay for. No bobus brands! No tricks of any kind are played off on you! If you want something which he has not got, a certain brand, he will lose the sale before ne will deceive you. This is right, and pays the best in the long run. His stock is now immense and his prices unmatched! No effort spared to please. No trouble is too much to be undertaken if it results in accommodation to the customer. His trade last week was immense owing to the attractions which "Bristle" all over his "Six Stores in One." Change of District Line. To the Countissioners of Roads and Revenues for the County of Fulton, State of Georgia—Gentlemen: HE UNDERSIGNED CITIZENS, YOUR PETItioners, residing in Cook's District, Fulton county, on the Mitchell or Hunter street road and vicinity, between the city limits and the western limits of Cook's District, respectfully petition your honorable body to detach from Cook's District all of that part of said district lying south of the original land line, running west, leaving city limits between land lots 115 and 116, and 141, and 50 on to Adamsville, on the western limits of Cook's District, and attach some to Riack hall District for District, and attach some to Blackhall District, for so on to Adamsville, on the western limits of Gook's District, and attach some to Blackhall District, for the following reasons:

First, The great inconvenience and loss of time on the part of your petitioners getting to and from their precinct in Cook's District for the purpose of registering, voting, and other business necessary to be transacted by citizens at their district precinct. Said precinct being located on the Marietta street road, is very inaccessible and difficult for your petitioners to reach without first coming to Atlanta and thence out Marietta street, while the precinct of Blackhall District very convenient. Many of your petitioners pass through West End directly by said Blackhall District daily, to and from the city, and those who do not so pass daily could, with little inconvenience and loss of time, pass the precinct going to and from Atlanta and could conveniently transact all precinct business. Second, We very much desire the benefits of the stock law, which our neighbors north of us do not desire the adoption of the stock law in Cook's district, and your petitioners feel assured, with Cook's district in its present shape and composition, they will not soon be able to secure the very desirable benefits resulting from the stock law mow enjoyed by our neighbors of Blackhall district.

The undersigned respectfully request you give

A delightful entertainment was given Friday evening by Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Hemphill, at their home on Peachtree street, complimentary to Miss Emmie Eurr, of Macon. Many were present, and the evening was spent most pleasantly. At 11 o'clock refreshments were served, after which, until quite a late hour, pleasant conversation occupied the young people, and it was with regret that the party dispersed. Miss Burr is a beautiful and accomplished young lady, and during he stay in the city has made many friends.

By judicious management Tallulah falls has been brought into more prominence this season than ever before. Naturally it has every advantage to make it the leading resort of the south, and under the admirable charge of the Scofield Bros., who have the Cliff house, and the Messrs. Robinwho have the Chin house, and the alessis from son, of the Robinson house, it is becoming famous as a resort. Atlanta has been its most liberal patron in the past, and hundreds have gone there this year to enjoy the rest and pleasure which this beautiful spot offers. The hotel facilities are perfect, reflecting great credit on the management. The Messrs. Scofield are well known throughout the country as successful managers, and more courteous and agreeable hosts cannot be found

A happy social event of the rast week was the lawn party given Tuesday evening by Miss Annie Shepherd at he beautiful home in Covington. A large number of young ladies and gentiemen from Atlanta were in attendance, and they returned to their respective homes feeling that never had they spent a more delightful evening. with the crowd like a fairy, and it was her desire that each and every guest should be made happy. The large and magnificent parlors were thrown open to the young people, while the brilliantly lighted lawn presented a bewitching scene as the gallant beaus and fair through the level walks or sat on the rustic seets Among those present were: Miss Annie Shepherd, Miss Carrie Claude, Atlanta; Miss Benson, Augusta; Misses M. and L. Rev. John Kershaw, formerly of Rome, now of Cheraw, S. C., visited Rome this week.
One of the most recherche events of the season occurred at the residence of Dr. and Mrs. Robert Battey Monday evening, being a Mikado party given by their daughter, Miss Mattle. The grounds were beautifully and brilliently illuminated with Japanese lanterns. The spacious parlors were decorated with Japanese devices. Forty couples were present, all arrayed in Mikado costumes, many of which were unique and attractive. Dancing was indulged in during the evening. A bountiful of linder the trees near the house. Among the most pleasant features of the evening ware a solo by Miss Howell, of Arkansas, and a song by Miss Ida Nevin and Messrs. Ed Warner and Will Patton. Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Howell, of Russellville, Ark., are visiting Rome.

One of the most pleasant affairs of the week was an ice cream supper at the beautiful home of Dr. J. M. Couch. The triumph of the evening was the plano solo by Miss Beile Brantley. Her delicate touch and skillful execution betoken the true artist, and clearly evinced a soul in harmony with the lofty strains evoked by a master hand. Her referemence was received with active meaning. the lofty strains evoked by a master hand. Her performance was received with naoturous applause. A bright future is certainly in store for this young lady. The music on the harp, guitar and triangle, as executed by Professor T. J. Little, proclaimed that excellent young man a skilled musician. Every one, as they bid the genial host and hostess goodnight, decided that the evening was one of unalloyed pleasure.

The residence of Mis. S. B. Jones was the scene of a large gathering of the beaux and belies of the city on Wednesday evening last. The occasion was a reception tendered Miss Mamie Lee Wing, of Macon, the guest of the hostess. Gaiety and mirth held its away until the hours sped so swiftly by that no one had scarcely noticed their feetness, and when all wended their way homeward it was with a sigh of regret that they relinquished the pleasures of the evening for an embrace of Morpheus. Durling the evening refreshments were served.

The following were present: Annie Bell Gilmore, B. F. Duggan, Calife Thomas, McDuggan, Salife Talliaferro, C. M. Fulghum, Rosa Telitalerro, Clinton Adams, Mary L. In the seven innings Atlanta knocked two pitchers out of the box.

The game opened with Chamberlain, the ambidextrous wonder, in the box, while Stearnes, the old reliable first baseman, was behind the bat to receive the delivery. The second ball Chamberlain sent in Cline pasted way down into center field for three bases, and then crossed the plate on the first passed ball by Stearns. Purcelt went out on three strikes, much to his annoyance, and Lyons came up. He made a clean hit for a single and then stole second, retched third on a passed ball and scored on a wild pitch. Lynch hit a fly to center, which Miller muffied, letting Lynch reach second. Miller's wild throw to second in fielding the ball gave Lynch third. Hogan hit slow to third and made first. He then made a bold dash for second, to give Lynch a chance to get home. Stearns threw the ball to second, and as Lynch started in Giess threw the ball back to the plate, but his throw was not accurate, and Lynch was safe. While Stricker was at bat Hogan was Caught playing too far off second and was put out. Stricker then made a hit to second for two bags and stoic third where he was left by Snafer going ous at first. For the visitors, Stearns went out at first. For the visitors, Stearns went out at third in trying to get three bags on a two base hit. Chamberlain's delivery suited the singers too well and when the Macons went back to the field, Geiss was put in the box, Miller going to second, and Chamberlain to center. Geiss's pitching did not puzzle the sluggers, and without any trouble, four men crossed the plate, but Macon never reached first. The Atlantas failed to score in the fourth because of a beautiful double play by Waish and Miller. Another double play in the fifth prevented a run.

Cause of a beautiful double play by Waish and Miller. Another double play in the fifth prevented a run.

In the sixth Purcell made second on Walsh's wild throw; Lyons made first on Chamberlain's muff and stole second; Lynch went to second on Lutenberg's muff and Purcell scored; Hogan made first on Walsh's muff and stole second, Lyons scoring; Lynch scored on Stein's low throw to second; Hogan tcored on Heinzman's wild throw; Stricker flew out to first; Shafer flew out to tenter; Mappes hit to third and out at first; Geiss hit to third and out at first; Geiss hit to third and out at first; Peltz flew out to left.

In the seventh Conway hit to center for a slugle; Cline flew out to left; Purcell hit to left for a three-bagger, bringing Conway home and scoring himself on Chamberlain's fumble; Lyons fouled out; Lynch hit to first and out.

At the end of the seventh the umpire called the game at the request of Manager Peltz.

At four o'clock, the hour for the game, no umpire appeared and both managers agreed upon Gunson, of the Atlanias. He made a good umpire, not a single decision being questioned.

Fowell, who has recently been elected manager of the Charleston, seems to be doing remarkably well in his new position.

When Atlanta finishes the present series with Macon in Atlanta his will then open with the Nashvilles in Nashville.

Wells will pitch for Atlanta on Monday, and it will be remembered that he has never lost a game on the Atlanta prounds.

The Atlanta brople are very enthusiastic over the excellent playing of the Atlanta champions, and will, during the Macon games, turn out in very large numbers to witness the playing.

There will be an excursion from Bavannah over the East Tennessee and Central roads when the Savannah club plays her championship series with Atlanta, and it is said the entire city of Savannah is coming.

Manager Simmons, of the Athletics of Philadelphia, is in the city. The object of his visit is said to be the adjustment of the matter between himself and the Chattanooga club in regard to the blacklisting of Hart. Simmons agreed to pay the Chattanooga club $400 for Hart, and on that condition the Chattanoogas let him go. Manager Simmons will arrange the matter during his visit south.

Burglar Visits Mr. John S. Logan, on Whitehall Street-Another Case of Cruelty to Animals— The Department Makes a Change of Watches-Other Police News.

A burglar virited the residence of Mr. John 8. ogan, 855 Whitehall street, Friday night. The burglar was evidently watching his chance The burglar was evidently watching his chance to make a good pull, as Mr. Logan was sitting up with a sick child and was going backward and forth from one room to another administering to the wants of his child. Mr. Logan had gone into an adjoining room and remained only a short time. Just as he re-entered the room the burglar jumped out of the open window and escaped. Mr. Logan ran out with the gun, but was unable to see anything of his unwelcome visitor. Returning to the room, Mr. Logan could discover nothing missing, but yesterday found that a new pair of ants, which he had purchased the day before. could not be found. This was all the thief succeeded in getting.

They Were Dismissed.

M. C. Galluchat and C. Millican, the two men M. C. Galluchat and C. Millican, the two men who engaged in the cowhiding affair on Spring street, near Marietta street, Tuesday last, were arraigned in police court yesterday morning and asked to enter a plea to the churge of disorderly conduct. The evidence showed that Millican had been talking about Galluchat, and that the remarks caused the encounter. Judge Anderson disposed of the case by discharging both men; Millican being discharged because he was the assaulted party and Galluchat because he was under bond to the state courts for assault and battery.

Cruelty to Animals.

Officers Mercer and Hitson yesterday even-ing found a negro draymen named John Reese, driving a mule which was not only sick, but was poor and scarcely able to draw an empty dray. A case for cruelty to animals was made against the negro, and he will be tried before Recorder Anderson tomorrow morning.

WEST END NOTES.

Mr. Charles M. Goodman will build home in West End. Mr. Allen P. Morgan has gone on a brief visit to Newnan, Ga. Mr. J. O. Wynn has plans for a residence to e erected in West End.

Mr. W. L. Stanton and family are sojourning at Gainesville for health and recreation. Mrs. J. K. Polk has purchased a lot from Mrs. Trueman, and is building a residence thereon Mr. H. H. Dickson has bought a lot on reeples street, and will improve it during the

Mr. John O'Donnelly has bought a lot on Baugh street, and will build thereon and make it

Mrs. J. F. Woodward bought a beautiful acre lot at the recent sale of the Stanton property, and will soon erect a residence thereon. Mrs. J. H. Abernathy has bought a lot on Peeples street, next to Captain Irish, and will im-prove by erecting a five-room residence thereon. Dr. T. D. Longino has plans for one of the handsomest residences that have yet been erected in West End. It will be erected fronting Oak and Lee streets, opposite the Park street Methodist church.

Professor W. W. Lambdin, principal of West End academy, is erecting a pretty residence on Lee street. Professor Lambdin is taking his vacation by providing a home for himself and family.

Mr. Brunner, of Rome, Ga., has recently purchased a lot of Colonel John N. Jounn on Ashby street, and will improve it and reside in West End. Mr. Brunner married Miss Ida Dunn, who is well known to the people of West End. He will be welcomed to West End.

The recent sale of the Shannon estate on corner of Peeples and Baugh street, was a test of the value of real estate in West End. The four acres fronting on Peeples street, running back over four hundred feet, brought $7,500. About seven years ago Mr. Shannon paid $1,300 for the same property.

PRABODY TEACHERS' INSTITUTE.

The Institute to Meet Tomorrow in the Girls High School Building.

The Georgia Teachers Institute will meet on tomorrow. It will be held this year, as last, in the girls high school building in the excellent room set apart for the use of the Browning society. The sessions will probably last from nine in the morning till half past two in the afternoon, though the programme is not yet fully arranged. This is the fifth year in which Teachers' institutes have been held. Commencing in 1882, the trustees of the Peabody fund have given money to be used in holding institutes, and each year so far has shown a dealded advance over the previous one in the number of teachers who availed themselves of the opportunity of free instruction afforded.

All indications point to a great increase this year. The services of the best instructors in the south have been secured, including Dr. Groff, of Pennsylvania, Professor Glenm, of the University of Tennessee, Horace Bradley, artist, of Atlanta, Professor S. C. Caldwell, of Bome, Major Slaton, of the Atlanta public schools, Mr. Baker, of Savannah, Rev Charles Lane, of Masoon, Mrs. F. C. Mallon and M. J. Goldamuth, of Atlanta. Dr. Orr, the superintendent of the institute, will lecture on school law, and lectures may be expected from J. Harris Chappell, Dr. A. G. Haygood, and perhaps Dr. A. W. Calhoun. Instruction such as these men can give, cannot be had anywhere else in Georgia at least.

The trustees of the Peabody fund place a rare opportunity before the teachers of Georgia in providing means for an institute of this kind. No doubt they; will appreciate it. The attendance last year was $71 and a calculation based on past increase puts the probable number this year at shout 490. If this number is reached, it will show that the teachers are ready to take advantage of the privilege.

The Peabody fund is used in assisting at various places, and not, as a rule, in carrying on state work. The trustees have made an exception, hitherto, in favor of Georgia. The institute his separintende

The eyes are always in sympathy with the body, and afford an excellent index of its condition. When the eyes become weak, and the lids inflamed and sore, it is an evidence that the system has become disordered by Scrofula, for which Ayer's Sarsaparilla is the best known remedy.

* For a number of years I was troubled with a humor in my eyes, and was unable to obtain any relief until I commenced using Ayer's Sarsaparilla. This medicine has effected a complete cure, and I believe it to be the best of blood purifiers.—C. E. Upton, Nashua, N. H.

three bottles of this medicine, have been entirely cured. My sight has been restored, and there is no sign of inflammation, sore, or ulcer in my eye.—Kendal T. Bowen, Sugar Tree Ridge, Ohio.

My daughter, ten years old, was afflicted with Scrofulous Sore Eyes. During the last two years she never saw light of any kind. Physicians of the highest standing exerted their skill, but with no permanent success. On the recommendation of a friend I purchased a bottle of Ayer's Saraparilla, which my daughter commenced asting. Desore the malused the third bottle her sight was restored, and she can now look steadily at a brilliant light without pain. Her cure is complete.—W. E. Sutherland, Evangelist, Shelby City, Ky.

It has superseded the Actual Cautery or hot iron; produces more than four times the effect of a blister; takes the place of all liniments, and is the safest application ever used, as it is impossible to produce a scar or blemish with it. It is a powerful, ac-tive, reliable and safe remedy that can be manipulated at will for severe or mild effect. Thousands of the best Veterinarians and Horsemen of this country testify to its many wonderful cures and its great practical value. It is also the most econor remedy in use, as one tablespoonful of Caustic Balsam will produce more actual results than a whole bottle of any liniment or spavin cure mixture ever made. D. H. DOUGHERTY & Co.

Special request to those from a distance to call on us when they come or send to Atlanta. Our low price system is giving us the trade.

This is the first of August, and the time that we always announce our Cut-rate Sales on all remaining Spring and Summer Goods.

You will find our prices so low this week and the remainder of this month on many lines of goods that you will be induced to pull down your glasses. The many lines of goods which we propose closing out during our August sales, is so extended and varied that we can't name them here, but below are a few of our regular dead shots.

We know that it is early to be getting in fall goods and we would not have bought our Cashmeres so early had we not bought them way below value. We know that the low prices at which we are selling these goods will enable us to close them out and be ready for another stock by the fall season.

SHOES.

This is one of our big departments. Our business is growing so rapidly here that we often have to call as many as ten men to wait on the trade. Our great stock of Shoes is immense in variety and size, Ladies', Misses' and Men's goods. Four numbers, however, are all that we shall call special attention to here;
